MYSTERY IS CLEARED UP FOR POLICE

Bodies of Fullerton Man and Long Beach Woman Are Found In Harbor

TRUCK LEAVES PIER

Long Beach Police Discount Reports That Couple Met With Foul Play

THE MYSTERY of the disappearance on January 13 of Charles E. Huddleston, 46, Fullerton oil tool inventor, and Mrs. Lola Cook, 36, of 252 Crescent avenue, Long Beach, was definitely cleared today so far as police investigation was concerned, with the finding of the bodies of the missing couple, in the ocean, near the municipal dock in the Long Beach harbor.

Both were drowned when the truck in which they were sitting, rolled off the dock into the ocean, according to Long Beach police officers who have been conducting an investigation for the past 10 days.

The body of Mrs. Cook was found, seated in the truck shortly before 10 a. m. today by officers who dragged the harbor in the vicinity of the place where Huddleston's body was found floating in the water yesterday afternoon.

Long Beach police said today that an investigation, made today of the woman's body, was found, indicated that the truck had been left out of gear while Huddleston and Mrs. Cook parked on the dock, and that marks on the edge of the dock showed where the truck had toppled off into the water.

Fishermen found Huddleston's body floating in the water at a distance some 200 yards from where the grappling hooks located the sunken truck early today. It was after the finding of Huddleston's body that police officials and friends of the couple who had aided in the search, decided to drag the waterfront for Mrs. Cook's body. The dragging started this morning and met with almost instant success.

Huddleston, well known Fullerton resident, residing at 152 West Malvern street, and an employee of the Shafter Tool Works of Brea, disappeared after he left for his work and no trace of him had been found by members of his family until reports were received of the finding of the body. He leaves a widow and two children.

Mattie Cook, 16 year old daughter of Mrs. Cook, reported to police during the search that was

COMMANDER BYRD PLANS EXPEDITION

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 24.—(UP)—Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd, air conqueror of both the north and south poles, plans another expedition, probably to Antarctica, but is not yet ready to reveal its nature, he declared here today.

Admiral Byrd, who will speak tonight in Pasadena, will leave here Tuesday for Phoenix, Ariz.

His expedition to the frozen pole which cost nearly $1,000,000 has finally been paid for, he declared. In debt more than $125,000 upon his return to this country, his lecture tours, assumed to pay off what he considered a personal indebtedness, have more than made up that figure, he said.

All County High Schools To Take Part in Radio Project Launched Here

RIVALRY TO BE KEEN

Organ Music, Programs By Students and Discussions Of Timely Topics, Plan

Marking the advent of a new epoch in radio broadcasts and coming as the result of much careful thought and planning, a new project will be launched over KREG next Monday through the co-operation of the Tustin Union High school and J. W. Means, principal.

Facilities for remote control have been installed at the Tustin school, whereby daily organ recitals and regular broadcasts of outstanding class discussions of timely questions and problems will be carried out on the air to thousands of radio listeners.

Every high school in Orange county will co-operate in the huge project and will present programs in the Tustin High school studio, which will be broadcast by KREG, blazing a new trail in radio-educational projects.

The first program will be presented on Monday from 11 to 11:45 a. m. and will include organ music with Alexander Reilly, well known for his broadcasts over KFI, at the console of the Aeolian organ with Duo Art reproduction.

J. F. Burke, of The Register, will open the program with a short talk, after which Means will outline the purposes of the new project and will tell what accomplishments are hoped for. Ray Adkinson, county school superintendent will follow, explaining the place in modern education which such a venture will fill.

John Malcom, principal of the San Juan Capistrano school and leader in countywide civic projects, will explain the attitude of other high schools in co-operating in the programs, after which a program of organ music by Reilly will be presented.

A group of vocal numbers will follow, presenting Ed Rogers, Tustin High school singer, accompanied by the organ. Rogers will

PROHIBITION HEAD, ILL. RETURNS HOME

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., Jan. 24.—(UP)—Amos W. W. Woodcock, federal prohibition director, who was taken ill with a high fever while on a visit of inspection here, was en route to his home in Washington today, leaving his business unfinished.

Dr. Andrews S. Fritts, who attended Woodcock when he almost collapsed after a conference with Lowell R. Smith, prohibition administrator for the Syracuse district, said today he advised against Woodcock's departure before he had entirely recovered, but the director wished to return home, and left shortly before midnight.

PROLONGED STRIKE OF MILL MEN SEEN

MANCHESTER, Eng., Jan. 24.—(UP)—A prolonged mill stoppage was foreseen in Lancashire today when the weavers voted against resuming negotiations for settlement of the present conflict which has put some 250,000 men out of work and threatens to make as many more idle.

The vote was 90,770 to 44,990 against resuming negotiations. The cotton stoppage grew out of efforts of employers to put the "more looms per weaver" system into effect. The workers objected.

SEEK RAIL CHANGES

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.—(UP)—The interstate commerce commission recommended today to the senate changes in the transportation act of 1920 described as being designed to provide a "stable rate basis" and greater flexibility in fixing railway earnings.

Repeal of the present recapture provisions of the law was said by the commission to be necessary, and it proposed a substitute provision giving it wider latitude in adjusting railway rates.

ALABAMA PRISON DAMAGED BY FIRE

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Jan. 24.—(UP)—The main building of the Alabama state prison was heavily damaged by fire today.

Flames which broke out shortly before midnight gained rapid headway and destroyed the entire north wing of the building. The prison's executive offices and one of the textile factories were burned to the ground.

The prison, located at Wetumpka, 14 miles from here, houses 562 convicts. None was sleeping in the burning building, however, and no disorder was encountered by the prison authorities.

LOOKS AHEAD

J. W. Means, principal of the Tustin Union high school, is co-operating with KREG in blazing a new trail in the field of education by radio. Working with the Santa Ana radio station he has developed a plan for daily broadcasts from the Tustin school, in which an innovation, through broadcast of class discussions and musical programs, has been developed. The first broadcast will begin Monday at 11 a. m.

STATE SOLONS IN RECESS FOR THIRTY DAYS

Total of 2880 Bills Filed In 13 Days, Greatest Number Since 1913

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 24.—(UP)—The 30-day constitutional recess of the California state legislature started today.

On February 24, members of the two houses will again assemble, to face the largest number of bills introduced in the last 18 years.

In the 13-day session the legislators heaped a total of 2880 proposed laws onto the clerk's desk, a number only exceeded once in California history. That was at the peak session of 1913, when 3922 bills were introduced.

Only one outstanding measure, with the exception of the biennial budget, was seen in the bills adopted by both houses as emergency measures during the first session.

That was Governor Rolph's proposed permanent unemployment commission, given final passage by the assembly after the governor broke all precedent and appeared before the legislature in person to urge its adoption.

The commission would consist of five members, named by the governor, to carry on a year-round study of all the problems of unemployment in California, with a view of recommending proper steps toward its solution. A $50,000 appropriation was asked to carry the act into effect.

Senator John L. Moran of Corning, who balked at a long list of deficiency bills, withdrew his objection at the last minute, and permitted adoption of a $210,000 deficiency for the state building at San Francisco. Other deficiency measures included $205,000 for the veterans' home at Yountville and $10,000 for printing.

Creation of a state commission to appoint all judges for life terms, a bill designed to take California judges out of politics, was proposed by Assemblyman Frederick Houser of Los Angeles.

Under Houser's bill, a commission, consisting of the lieutenant governor, speaker of the assembly, attorney general and chief justices of supreme and appellate courts would appoint all supreme, appellate, superior and municipal court judges.

Striking at one of California's greatest industries, Senator Dan Emmett of Chinese Camp, would levy a one-half cent tax on every foot of moving picture film "produced for profit" in the state. Revenue thus derived would go into the state's general fund and would relieve the burden on farm property, Emmett said.

Carrying out terms of a proposition adopted by the voters at the last general election, providing for a retirement system for state employees, Senator Bradford S. Crittenden of Tracy, introduced an enabling act to put the new law into effect.

Radio would be recognized as a public utility by placing it under supervision of the state railroad commission, if a bill by Senator J. L. Wagy of Bakersfield, is adopted by the legislature.

A department of radio supervision would be created under the railroad commission providing for a radio director and assistants.

DAISY DE VOE FOUND GUILTY ON ONE COUNT

Former Secretary to Clara Bow Will Be Sentenced on Monday

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 24.—(UP)—Daisy De Voe, former secretary to Clara Bow, was pronounced guilty today, under conviction of grand theft on one of 35 counts the film star filed against her.

A jury of seven men and five women all middle-aged, returned a compromise verdict against Miss De Voe at 3:45 p. m. yesterday, ending 48 hours of argument. All members joined in asking that leniency be shown by the court.

Miss De Voe wept hysterically when the verdict was read and she realized that she faced a term of one to 10 years in San Quentin prison, when taken to the jail on the 13th floor of the hall of justice and placed in women's tank D-1.

The verdict came suddenly at a time when Judge William C. Dwyer and others connected with the trial believed the jury was hopelessly deadlocked.

Miss De Voe sat quietly near the counsel table when news came from the jury room that a verdict was ready. She watched the 12 jurors file into their box, then turned toward Judge Doran, who took the report.

DAZZLING NEW YORK BALL DRAWS THROUG

NEW YORK, Jan. 24.—(UP)—A throng of gorgeously costumed revelers poured into Times square at dawn today as the annual Beaux Arts ball, society's most lavish spectacle of the year, came to a close in the grand ballroom of the Astor hotel.

For weeks the city's most celebrated artists and decorators had been at work in their studios and ateliers designing the spectacle. Thousands of dollars were spent by society leaders and debutantes each hoping to outdo the other in the splendor of costumes.

Unlike previous years, when such historical extravaganzas as the Napoleonic court and "Venice Through the Ages" were depicted, the ball of 1930 struck a dizzy modernistic note.

KEYES MAY LEAVE CELL BEFORE FALL

SAN QUENTIN PRISON, Jan. 24.—(UP)—The formal application of Aza Keyes, former Los Angeles district attorney, for parole may result in his leaving San Quentin before next fall, it was revealed today.

Conviction of accepting bribes and sentenced to one to 14 years imprisonment, Keyes will have served his first year on March 12. Officials said there was a probability of further time credit being given him for good behavior since his incarceration.

Keyes' request for a parole will be considered at the same time that his sentence is fixed, members of the prison board said.

The former district attorney has intimated his intention of entering a private law firm in the south of California should he be granted a parole. To do this, however, his reinstatement before the bar would be necessary.

LOYD DYE OF COSTA MESA IS FOUND GUILTY

Must Serve Ten Years to Life For Slaying—His Partner Is Freed

WHILE LOYD W. DYE, Costa Mesa youth, today awaited sentence of 10 years to life for the murder of Wade Horton, aged Mint Canyon rancher, Gordon E. Gauss, on trial with him, was freed by a jury after nearly two days' deliberation, in Los Angeles.

The jury of seven women and five men late yesterday found Dye guilty of second degree murder and acquitted Gauss. Sentence on Dye will be pronounced January 27 by Superior Judge Charles Fricke.

Life imprisonment for both defendants had been asked by the prosecution largely upon circumstantial evidence. Because of his age, Gauss, who is 17, was not subject to the death penalty. Dye, 22, could be hanged but a ruling by the supreme court held that the death penalty could not be imposed in a similar case where the defendants' confession was not supported by other evidence.

According to the purported confession of Dye, he and Gauss in company with Tony Martinez, Mexican youth and ward of Horton, went to the ranch to rob him of an alleged hoard of gold. Horton was killed when he resisted the robbery attempt.

Dye was arrested several weeks later when tire tracks and a bullet scar on his stomach from Horton's shot, linked him with the slaying. He implicated Gauss and Martinez in his story. Martinez is still at large.

$4000 Quota Boosted By Big Checks

Another Donation of $100 From Tustin Branch Received Today

A LEAP TOWARD the local Red Cross goal of $4000 was made today when subscriptions received since yesterday morning brought the drive total to $2325.97.

Among the checks that came in was one for $100 from Tustin. The money had been left at the Tustin bank, where subscriptions for the Red Cross are received.

Another check for $50, from Garden Grove Red Cross, which organization previously had sent in $177. At San Clemente funds are to be left with Mrs. George Ferguson.

The dire need throughout the great area where relief funds are being spent seems to be better understood here day by day, and for that reason local officials of the Red Cross believe that subscriptions will continue to come in rapidly.

Treasurer Harry Hanson says: "Don't forget that this must be voluntary as no personal solicitations will be made."

Fear Violence As Negro Accused of Murdering Sheriff

BUYRUS, O., Jan. 24.—(UP)—A crowd of angered citizens was dispersed by police and county officers today after they had surrounded the Crawford county jail in which a Negro was held as the murderer of Sheriff George Davenport.

Fearing mob action when the crowd began uttering threats against Walter Ralls, 36, authorities moved through the groups and ordered them to disperse. The crowd dissolved with no display of violence.

Woman Killed Instantly As Car Skids On Coast Road

BOY AND GIRL INJURED WHEN AUTO UPSETS

A mother, chaperoning her young daughter and the girl's sweetheart on an automobile trip from Los Angeles to Laguna Beach, was instantly killed, when the car in which the three were riding, skidded on wet pavement yesterday afternoon, a short distance west of The Arches, on the Coast highway.

The woman was Mrs. Marie Elizabeth Edmunds, 50, wife of E. B. Edmunds, a tailor, of 512 West Manchester avenue, Los Angeles. The daughter, who received only cuts and bruises of a minor nature in the accident, is Mary C. Edmunds, 18. The boy is Edwin J. Eiterman, 19, of 1952

West Seventy-fourth street, Los Angeles. Young Eiterman suffered a dislocated thumb. He graduated from a Los Angeles high school Wednesday.

According to Lloyd Groover, state traffic officer, who was at the scene of the accident a short time after it occurred, the boy and the girl, with the mother, had gone to Laguna Beach, where they have a cabin, for the purpose of procuring clothing which they expected to wear on a trip to the mountains over the week end. They were on their way back to Los Angeles when the car skidded and turned over in a small ditch at the right side of the road.

Eye witnesses to the accident were Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Wilson, of 221 Fourteenth street, Huntington Beach, who reported that they had followed the car driven by Eiterman for some distance along the highway. Mr. and Mrs. Wilson reported that the Eiterman car was not speeding at the time it skidded off the pavement.

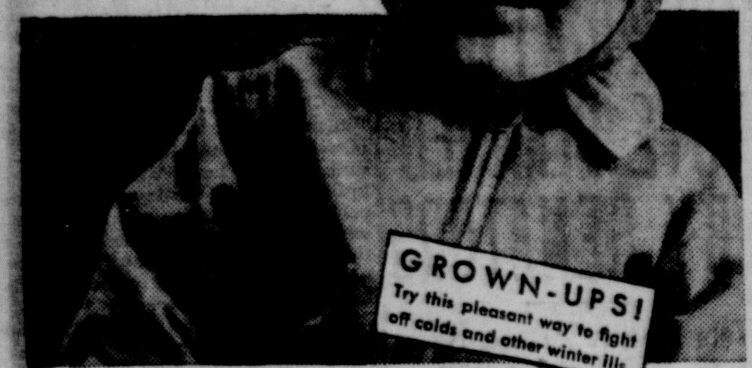

Mrs. Edmunds was killed instantly. Her neck was broken. The body was rushed to the Newport Beach hospital, but physicians there could find no trace of life.

More proof that children take cod-liver oil willingly—this emulsified way

RECENTLY, a Scott's Emulsion reporter called on Mrs. A. Gently, 11 Wheeler St., Montclair, N. J., mother of lovely triplets, one of whom is pictured here.

"Yes," Mrs. Gently told us brightly, "I certainly do know how hard it is to make children take cod-liver oil. And I'll be glad to have my triplets try Scott's Emulsion of Cod-Liver Oil..." Each youngster took a spoonful. "It's good," said Philip. "I like it," said Frances. "Nice," said Ann.

Pleasant to take—but that isn't all
Pale, thin, run-down children—

they need cod-liver oil. Give it to them the pleasant way—give them Scott's Emulsion.

Scott's Emulsion has that strong "fishy" taste. It doesn't upset even delicate stomachs. It brings you purest, Norwegian cod-liver oil in its pleasant form—a perfect emulsion. Easier to take—easier to digest.

Scott's Emulsion is rich in vitamin A, the disease-resisting vitamin. It is rich in vitamin D, the sunshine, rickets-preventing vitamin. It also contains vital mineral elements that aid in forming sound bones and teeth. This gives Scott's Emulsion a special advantage for growing children, infants, nursing and expectant mothers. Get some to-day.

NEW OFFICERS INSTALLED BY RELIEF CORPS

New officers of the Woman's Relief Corps, of Costa Mesa, were installed yesterday at the Woman's clubhouse, with Mrs. Gladys McDonald as the installing officer. The installation ceremonies opened with a 1 o'clock luncheon when decorations for the beautifully appointed table and for the club rooms were carried out 1 nine national colors.

Mrs. Margaret Long, retiring president, presided and gave an interesting resume of the work of the past year. It was revealed that the organization, with 26 members, had contributed $222 to relief work in the community, and that the executive committee had earned the sum of $75. The corps presented five flags to various organizations at Costa Mesa, fruit and flowers were taken to patients at the Orange county hospital, needy children were aided and a World War veteran adopted, it was reported.

Assisting Mrs. McDonald in the installation were Mrs. Rebecca Blair, of Orange, as installing conductor; Mrs. Estelle Gray, of Santa Ana, as installing musician; Mrs. Laura McCoy, as installing chaplain; and Mesdames Florence Merriman, Mable Lee, Lucy Robinson and Mabel Elliott as installing color bearers.

Officers installed were: President, Ica Clark; senior vice president, Etta Tead; junior vice president, Dora Lambertson; chaplain, Lauretta Pangle; treasurer, Mary Bennett; guard, Margaret Cosad; conductor, Allice King; assistant conductor, Emma Wilkenson; secretary, Margaret Long; patriotic instructor, Dolores Morrison; musician, Clara Rowland; color bearers, Clara McMurtry, Ida Wood, Lettie Dodeck and Pearl Brown. At the close of the ceremony, Mrs. McDonald was presented with a handsome floor lamp.

WHISKEY STILL TWO PRISONERS TAKEN IN RAID

Two prisoners and a 25-gallon capacity whiskey still were taken in a combined sheriff's office and city police raid staged at the home of Eduardo Naponelli, at 2300 West Fifth street shortly after noon today.

The still was discovered by Deputy Merle Dean, when Dean went there to serve a civil case subpoena. The still was running full blast at the time he walked in the door, he reported. Dean communicated with the city police and the raid was staged.

Naponelli was arrested together with his 16-year-old son, who told officers that he had been operating the still for his father. The boy will be held in the juvenile home and Naponelli was booked at the county jail on a charge of owning and operating a still.

140 ATTRACTED TO ANNUAL "Y" DINNER SESSION

North Orange county Y. M. C. A. workers to the number of 140 met at the Methodist church in Yorba Linda for their annual dinner meeting last night.

The turkey dinner was followed by the business session held in the church auditorium, with W. D. Shaffer, of Brea, presiding. The Rev. G. C. The committee followed, showing an amount of $7,100 required for the work this year. Field reports followed, H. S. Horr reporting for Buena Park, seven clubs enrolling 90 boys; Ross Hodson, La Habra, six clubs and 75 boys; A. V. Sullivan, Brea, three clubs and 53 boys; Fred Johnson, Yorba Linda, four clubs and 46 boys; Andrew Ipsen, Placentia, four clubs and 54 boys; J. W. Johnson, Orangehorpe, two clubs and 25 boys; A. M. MYSTERY IS CLEARED UP FOR POLICE made for her mother, that Huddleston came to their house at 10 p. m. on the night of January 13 and called her mother outside. She said her mother hesitated several times about going out to the truck in which Huddleston was seated, but finally donned an old coat and started out the front door, calling over her shoulder that she would be back in 15 minutes.

That was the last Mattie or her sister, Mary, 18, ever saw of their mother, and when she did not return during the night the girls were frantic, reporting to police that their mother had never left them for so long a time without communicating with them.

That foul play may have been used in the deaths of Huddleston and Mrs. Cook was seen by members of both families, but the Long Beach police were not of the same opinion, they said. Huddleston recently invented an oil jar, a tool used in oil well fishing and tests of it had shown it highly successful, according to Shaffer Tool Works officials. Huddleston stood to make a small fortune out of the invention, he believed, and for this reason, it was pointed out that he was in the best of spirits at the time of his disappearance.

sing "In an Old Fashioned Town" and "Honey If You Only Knew." The first program to be presented by one of the co-operating schools will be heard on Wednesday when the Anaheim High school will broadcast a program from the Tustin studio. The program will open with organ music and will last for approximately 45 minutes, starting at 11 a. m. Tuesday's program will be composed chiefly of organ and vocal music.

On Thursday, from 11 to 11:45 a. m. there will be one or two special broadcasts of class discussions, featuring vital topics of timely interest. A program will be presented by the Tustin school and the organ again will be heard. The programs will be on the air daily except Saturday and Sunday. Friday's program will include organ and vocal music. Means pointed out today that while broadcasts of class lectures have been carried on before, the broadcast of class discussions is entirely an innovation in radio.

It is expected that this feature will prove one of the most popular in the schedule, inasmuch as listeners will follow with interest the development of ideas on timely subjects as they are worked out in the class room by the students.

Another feature which will add to the county wide interest of the project is the friendly rivalry that will develop between students of the various schools in trying to excel with their broadcasts. Means announced the schedule for programs to be given by other high schools, which will be 20 minute broadcasts. Following the Anaheim program on January 26, the San Juan Capistrano High school will broadcast on February 4, Orange on February 11, Huntington Beach on February 18, Brea-Olinda on February 25, Fullerton on March 4, Santa Ana on March 11, Newport Harbor High school on March 18 and Garden Grove on March 25. Each of the broadcasts will be rounded out by organ music.

A class room has been fitted up as a studio, where all the discussions will take place. The first subject to be discussed, selected tentatively, will deal with the water problem facing Orange county, the relation of rain to the underground supply and the problem of frost in citrus culture. The general science class will present this topic.

port case from a bailiff. "We find the defendant, Daisy De Voe, guilty of count No. 7 in the indictment," the judge read. A photographer boomed a new type bulb flashlamp near Miss De Voe and it seemed to be the spark which touched off her nerves—strained from 10 days in the courtroom.

She started to sob convulsively and threw herself into the arms of her sister, Mrs. Grace Black, who went inside the rail from the section reserved for spectators. "Oh, why didn't they find me guilty of everything?" Miss De Voe sobbed. "If I am guilty of one I am guilty of all. If I'm innocent of 34 charges, I'm just as innocent on the one charge left."

Daisy found little consolation in the juror's request that a letter urging leniency be read into the records. "We, the undersigned jury, ask that his honor grant leniency in pronouncing sentence in this case," the letter said. As the courtroom started to clear, Alfred Mathes, Miss De Voe's fiancé, stepped forward and spoke to Judge Doran. "Isn't there some chance, sir, of letting her out on bail?" he asked. "No," the judge replied. "The law expressly forbids bail between the time of recording the verdict and the pronouncing of sentence." This decision meant that Miss De Voe must stay in the county jail at least until 10 a. m. Monday, when she is to be sentenced. Mathes, with whom Daisy said she had quarrelled earlier in the day, turned to comfort her.

DEATHS

A WORD OF COMFORT

Keep up your courage with the chemical metaphor which comforted Marcus Dods. Into a liquid drop after drop is poured with no apparent result. Suddenly, when just enough has been added, everything is changed. It was not the last drop alone, but its work along with all before it, which accomplished the miracle.

So with your life. You seem to make no progress toward strength, understanding, courage or joy. Keep on! The turning point will come when you least expect it and every hour's endeavor will reap its reward in a calmness and a peace which nothing can take away.

SCHWALIER—At his home, 412 So. Flower, Jan. 23, 1931, Alexius P. Schwalier, aged 36 years, husband of Ruby Schwalier and brother of Anna M. Schwalier. Notice of funeral will be announced later by Smith and Tuttle.

CITIZENS WILL BE REQUESTED TO OFFER WORK

In an effort to stimulate interest in giving employment, a company of men will start out Monday from the city free employment office to canvass the whole community in search of jobs.

A group of business men and other interested citizens have provided a fund with which to pay for the time of the men who will make this canvass. Each man will carry record slips provided for the purpose, and will carefully list any and every sort of job that can be found by a house to house visitation. All jobs thus discovered will be reported to the city employment office, where men will be waiting to do the work required.

Householders are requested to give the canvassers a hearing, and to list with them any work of any sort. Warning is given that the men sent out from the employment office will carry credentials for identification so as to protect against any imposition. Each man is instructed to present his credentials, and to co-operate with the householders by suggesting the kinds of help available, the price to be agreed upon, and any other details.

Mrs. Belle Spanker, in charge of the employment office, stated today that the need for work is increasingly acute, and that a generous response to this personal appeal will mean much in the relief of actual need and suffering.

"Painting, repair work, lawn work, gardening, window washing, house work and many other kinds of work can be done efficiently and properly, by the people registered at the employment office," she said.

Calvin Coolidge Says:

By CALVIN COOLIDGE

Former President of the United States

NORTHAMPTON, Jan. 24.—Periodically we are asked to consider what to do about the organized efforts of those hostile to our form of government and system of society. We have about all the law necessary. Under the established inherent right of the people to determine their own institutions, overt acts of hostility are rightly punishable as crimes. This is a free country. The people have a right to discuss openly changes in government to be made constitutionally. That does not include conspiracy to use force.

The only effective remedy that can ultimately succeed is education. Argument must answer argument. Our people reject the theory that the bread they earn should be eaten by others. They wish to determine who shall eat it. The number unwilling to be convinced that our institutions are sound, that freedom prevails, and that economic conditions are humanly fair is strikingly small. Right thinking people should be alert, and somewhat organized to meet distortions of facts and illogical arguments. But our institutions are never in so much danger from those who are openly trying to destroy them as from the misguided actions of those who think they are saving society.

P.-T. A. PLANS BENEFIT SHOW FOR BROADWAY

"The Great Meadow," starring John Mack Brown, star of "Billy the Kid," will be given at the Fox Broadway theater next Friday night as a benefit for the Parent-Teacher association of the Santa Ana High school and the Santa Ana Junior college. Mrs. Sam Hurwitz, chairman of the ways and means committee of the association, announced today.

The money to be derived from the show will be used for the student loan fund, Mrs. Hurwitz announced.

The Parent-Teacher association will put tickets on sale in a number of downtown stores for the picture, including the Robbins-Henderson Insurance agency, the First National bank, Vic Walker's, Farmers' and Merchants' bank, Santa Ana Book store, Glyvens and Cannon drug stores, Matzer's drug store and at the Y. "The Great Meadow" is an historical epic, telling the story of the early migration of settlers from Kentucky and Missouri to the wild west in the days of 1840. It is one of the big pictures of the year.

FRAUD CHARGED IN DIVORCE CASE HERE

Charging fraud on the court by his wife in securing an interlocutory decree of divorce, the Orange county superior court July 3, 1930, James Willard Schultz, who makes his home with the Blackfoot tribe in Montana, filed a motion yesterday before Judge G. K. Scovel to set aside the decree issued to his wife, Mrs. Celia Schultz.

The author informed the court that he had filed a suit for divorce at Cutbank, Mont., charging desertion, and that his wife had filed an answer to the suit there, and then filed an action in the Orange county superior court last March on the same charge, but informed his attorney that she would not proceed with the case in the California court until after the action in the Montana court was decided. In the meantime, he alleges, she went ahead with the action here, entered a default against him and secured the interlocutory decree on July 3, 1930. He secured his decree in Montana on July 29.

Files of the case show letters written to Mrs. Schultz from Montana by the author in which he declared "Thoughts of living again in Laguna Beach or Los Angeles sicken me" and that he "Preferred to live among his friends and relatives in the Indian camps."

And now for the first time it is being shown on the Pacific Coast.

GENERAL CONCERN WINS INJUNCTION

Judge G. K. Scovel yesterday granted an injunction to the plaintiff, the General Petroleum corporation of California, against U. S. Cope and others, including the Roy Langley Oil company.

The restraining order sought asked that the defendants be enjoined from placing any gasoline or other products except those purchased from the plaintiff on the premises and enjoining them from maintaining or permitting to remain on the premises any signs or advertising matter or colors except those of the plaintiff.

FORD DISPLAY ATTENDED BY LARGE CROWD

The display of the complete line of Ford passenger and commercial cars and trucks, and exhibits showing how they are made, are attracting large crowds to the Ford show presented by George Dunton local dealer, in co-operation with nearby dealers and the Long Beach branch of the Ford Motor company. The show is being held in a tent at East Fourth and Garfield streets and will continue through this evening being open to the public from 10 a. m. to 10 p. m.

Yesterday and last night 154 persons visited the show, according to Dunton. This unusual interest is due in part, he said, to the fact that the show offers a rare opportunity for the public to see all the body types at one time in one place.

A feature of the show is the moving picture depicting the manufacture of raw materials to the finished car. This picture gives one a comprehensive idea of the extent to which waste and by-products are utilized.

The Fords, resplendent in their various colors and lustrous rustless steel trimmings, attracted attention from all. Attendees were

Population Of Santa Ana Boosted by 38

A population increase of 38 has been noted in the city during the last two weeks, according to figures compiled by Mrs. Frances Howell, directory clerk at the post office. Five hundred changes of address have come in to the post office during this time, 107 of which were coming in and 88, of which were leaving. Each of the change of address cards made out represents an average of two persons.

ORANGE COUNTY MEN WILL HEAR SUNDAY

Several Orange county men are among the crowd of more than 2000 delegates attending the third annual convention of the Federated Church Brotherhoods of California which is now in session at San Diego. The session of church men is being held at the First Baptist church, 930 Tenth street, San Diego, where the world-famous evangelist, Billy Sunday, will be the principal speaker tonight.

Sessions will continue tomorrow and the speaker for the afternoon session will be J. F. Burke, of Santa Ana. His subject will be "Christian Loyalty—To What and Why."

The public is invited to the sessions of the convention and arrangements have been made. Those unable to get seats for the meetings in the Baptist church will gather at the Central Christian church, where other prominent speakers will bring messages of interest.

kept busy answering questions and explaining the features of the new body types.

ELECTION HELD BY HISTORICAL SOCIETY HERE

At the annual meeting of the Orange County Historical society in the Ebell clubhouse last night directors for the coming year were elected. The board includes Dr. C. D. Ball, Mrs. J. C. Travis, T. E. Stephenson, Mrs. J. E. Pleasant, W. T. Brown, William McPherson and S. M. Davis.

Rare pictures and details about formation of early California cities were presented to members of the Orange County Historical society and their friends last night at the Ebell clubhouse by Laurence L. Hill, of the publicity department of the Security First National bank in Los Angeles. The pictures were shown by a stereopticon operated by Ernest Zimmerman and Max Elliott.

Preceding the talk by Hill, Miss Marian Parks sang a group of early California songs in Spanish, presenting interesting facts about the numbers before she sang them. She was dressed in Spanish costume. Her accompanist was Miss Blanche Siler. Both women are in the publicity department of the Los Angeles bank.

Dr. Ball presided and introduced the speaker. Hill stated that he hoped to produce a history of Santa Ana and Orange county in the near future. He has written histories of Santa Barbara and Los Angeles. One of his pictures showed Santa Ana in 1876. Others showed Anaheim, Long Beach and towns in the San Gabriel and San Fernando valleys.

He will be assisted by Clyde Jenken, city engineer; Nat. Neff, county highway superintendent; R. BOYS TOLD HOW TO ENJOY BIBLE

"People enjoy some things naturally, while for others they must acquire a taste," said the Rev. Harry Owens, speaking last night at the Y.M.C.A. on "How to Enjoy the Bible."

"One may enjoy a popular story or a motion picture without any preparation, but to enjoy a great work of art, or a literary classic takes study and understanding. The enjoyment of the Bible is likely to be acquired rather than natural."

"I am convinced that if we read the Bible as a book, getting at its stories and teachings as a whole, rather than piecemeal, we shall find our enjoyment rather increased."

The Rev. Mr. Owens discussed the numerous modern versions of the Bible, and explained the manner in which some of them have been brought about. Then he proceeded to read the whole story of the life and adventures of Jacob, as given in the book of Genesis, and as translated into modern language.

Next Friday evening, the Rev. Mr. Owens will read some of the shorter stories from the book of Judges.

Court Notes

Seeking both a divorce decree and annulment of her marriage, complaint was filed in superior court yesterday afternoon by Sarah Lee Moscoe against Carrol W. Moscoe. Annulment is asked on the grounds that her consent to the marriage was fraudulently obtained by representations on the part of the defendant that he was a man of good habits, character and reputation, whereas, the complaint said, he had been convicted of a felony and sentenced to the Preston School of Industry at Lone. The divorce is asked on grounds that her husband has been convicted of robbery and sentenced to San Quentin from the Los Angeles county superior court. They were married in Santa Ana on July 27, 1926.

G. O. Berry et al won a decree of quiet title to two lots in the Seventeenth street section of Huntington Beach after a hearing before Judge H. G. Ames in superior court yesterday. The defendants were H. M. White et al.

Desertion and failure to provide are charges set forth as cause for divorce in a complaint filed in superior court yesterday afternoon by Nellie W. Nelson against Fred H. Nelson. They were married in 1928 in San Francisco and separated June 3, 1929, when the plaintiff alleges she was deserted while they were living at Lake Tahoe.

The estate of William F. Egan, whose death occurred December 27, is valued at $325, according to a petition for letters of administration which was filed in the office of County Clerk J. M. Backs yesterday by Birdie M. Egan.

Joseph F. Peavey is petitioner for letters of administration in the estate of Jay M. Peavey. The estate is valued at $3050.

Judgment of $1000 principal, $224.59 interest, $150 attorney fees, and costs was awarded to Frank W. Green yesterday afternoon after a hearing before Judge H. G. Ames. The defendants were Benjamin Walker et al and the action was brought on a note and mortgage.

The California yearly meeting of the Friends church was granted a decree of quiet title to 1.1 acres of land in Orange county yesterday afternoon by Judge H. G. Ames after a hearing in department one of the superior court.

Following a hearing before Judge G. K. Scovel a judgment of the Fullerton township justice court was reversed and an award of $120 was made to Guy E. Curtis against Mrs. Ida Glessner. The action had been brought to secure $185, which it was alleged was due and unpaid on a contract.

Ending a marriage which was consummated in Brooklyn, N. Y., in 1908, an interlocutory decree of divorce has been granted by Judge G. K. Scovel to Isabella Reberger from William Reberger on a charge of failure to provide. The court order declared that the property was the separate property of the plaintiff. The Rebergers separated January 15, 1929.

Woodson Bennett, 19, Santa Ana boy, arrested on a charge of petty theft, was given a 30-day suspended jail sentence in Judge J. F. Talbot's court yesterday. He was arrested with a 15-year-old local boy and accused of stealing gasoline from a truck on East Fourth street.

HARRY HALL, OF LAGUNA, FACES FELONY CHARGE

Harry Hall, 45, arrested at Laguna Beach in December on a charge of contributing to the delinquency of his own children, by failing to properly care for them and for mistreating them, today faced a new accusation with the filing of a felony charge against him by the district attorney's office.

The new charge alleges that at the time of his arrest he had in his possession a blackjack. The blackjack was said to have been found in his suitcase. A special California law makes possession of such a weapon a felony.

Hall had indicated that he would plead guilty to the contributing charge, but when he was brought out of the jail yesterday, he changed his mind. The case has been set in superior court for January 27 at 10 a. m.

Hall was arraigned on the new charge yesterday afternoon in Justice Kenneth Morrison's court and his preliminary examination also was set for January 27.

Hall claimed at the time of his arrest on the contributing charge that efforts were being made to take his children away from him, because his 5-year-old son showed promise of becoming a great singer. The boy can sing 65 popular airs from memory, and demonstrated his ability in Judge Morrison's private office during the first preliminary held for the father.

MY SILENT PARTNERGOOD BONDS

A MAN who has succeeded in building up a large estate by following a single, rather narrow line of business, explained his "good fortune."

"As my business grew," he said, "I put back into it, out of profits, all the money it needed. If I had any excess, I bought bonds, asking my banker's advice. I did not speculate. I did not try any other business but the one I was in and knew about. When things went well, the coupons from the bonds augmented my profits. When they went badly, I could fall back on the bonds as good collateral."

FOUR DIVORCES GRANTED FRIDAY

Four interlocutory divorce decrees were issued in superior court here yesterday afternoon, all on charges of desertion. The decrees were equally divided among the winners in the actions—two going to wives and two to husbands.

The wives who won decrees were Winifred Robertson and Katie Brooker. Mrs. Robertson's case was heard before Judge G. K. Scovel, who granted the decree officially separating her from Fred W. Robertson. They were married in June, 1928, and separated Jan. 3, 1930. Judge H. G. Ames granted the decree to Mrs. Brooker from Harry Brooker after hearing evidence in the matter. The Brookers were married in Roswell, N. M., in 1910, and separated in 1925.

Judge Ames granted the decrees to both the husbands. They went to Harry C. Smith from Mary R. Smith and to John E. Anderson from Ella M. Anderson. The Smiths were married in 1921 and separated in 1923, while the Andersons only lived together one month and four days after their marriage on Oct. 22, 1929.

STATUS OF RED CROSS FINANCE IS EXPLAINED

That there is no need for any misunderstanding or uncertainty concerning the funds of the Red Cross, was declared today by T. E. Stephenson, local chairman of the Red Cross. The statement of the Red Cross representative was made by reason of the fact that assertions have been made that the Red Cross has $38,000,000 on hand and should use some of that money instead of calling on the public for $10,000,000. With the books of the Red Cross audited by the U. S. war department and an annual report widely distributed and made available to an interested person, the facts can be easily reached, he said.

"Surely," said Stephenson, "the president of the United States would not be joining in the call for $10,000,000 if $38,000,000 were idle and at hand."

"First, let us get a picture of how the Red Cross plans to meet great disasters. Disaster generally strikes like a blast. The need for big expenditures for relief is immediate. It is therefore the practice of the Red Cross to keep a reserve fund so that when flood, earthquake or flood descended, relief work need not wait until the raising of funds. At the close of the war, the Red Cross had a reserve of $51,000,000. Since that time the Red Cross has spent $37,000,000 in relief work more than has been raised. The balance has been reduced to almost $14,000,000, which has been committed as follows:

"There is an endowment and reserve fund of $6,000,000, which by reason of trust and request provisions cannot be spent, the interest only being available. The budget for the year includes $1,734,000 devoted to compelling obligations for continuing service to disabled ex-service men and women. Other budgeted obligations total another $2,226,000, including hold-over work of numerous disasters."

"Another fund that is in no way available for drought relief is $350,000 set apart for a building fund, the war time frame office building of the Red Cross that must be abandoned under the government's building program. Other minor restricted funds total $153,000."

"There remains $4,685,000 to safeguard all the other obligations to which the organization is committed, including immediate response to any other domestic disasters which may occur, the continuation of the regular program of public health nursing, first aid and life saving, nutrition, home hygiene, care of the sick, Junior Red Cross, the work of men now serving in the army and navy in this country, in our regular possessions and at foreign stations."

"The regular work of the Red Cross certainly must not be abandoned. Neither can the Red Cross deplete its diminishing reserves to the point where it cannot do its greatest service in responding to the call of disaster."

"The misunderstanding concerning this supposed $38,000,000 reserve fund was brought about by an article offered by a news service. The article was written by Mercer Johnson. In order to make a showing for the preposterous figure, the writer included all chapter and branch funds, including estimates for chapter collections on the annual roll call; reserves that can be used for ex-service men's work only; $5,000,000 already committed to drought relief; all restricted funds in the hands of both chapters and national organizations; all committed funds; an estimate of all collections for the year up to July 1, 1931, as well as all money spent since July 1 of last year."

"The truth is, of course, that there is dire need for relief work, and the Red Cross is on the job. It needs money for that particular work, and the money now being subscribed will be used for that work and not for other work, and the sooner it is subscribed and in the hands of the greatest relief organization the world has had, the better it will be for those who need the relief."

PASADENA CHOIR WILL SING HERE

Gounod's "Messe Solennelle" (St. Cecilia Mass) will be presented by the choir of the First Congregational church of Pasadena Sunday night at the First Congregational church on Sixth and Main streets.

The visiting singers form a chorus choir composed of 40 voices which is famous for its work. It is promised that this presentation will be one of the best concerts ever given by the group, which will have the support of able soloists.

As the entire concert is to be sung in Latin, the programs will contain both the Latin words and the English translation in order that the audience may follow the singers.

Preceding the presentation of the choir there will be a brief song service and the Rev. Perry F. Schrock will speak on "Echoes from Last Sunday Night." It has been suggested by the Rev. Mr. Schrock that those desiring good seats should come early.

DR. JOHNSTON TO ADDRESS Y. W. C. A.

Health Education night will be observed at the Y. W. C. A. next Monday. Dr. W. H. Johnston, of Anaheim, one of the leading surgeons of the county, will speak on the value of exercise to business women. A lively program of tap dancing and tumbling will be presented. The meeting will open at 7:30 p. m.

Miss Maude Moore is in charge of the program. Miss Moore is at the head of the health education work of the Y. W. C. A. here. Anyone interested in health is extended an invitation to be present by those in charge of the affair.

COME TO CHURCH

The Church is the meeting place of God and His people

A SERMONETTE

BY THE REV. EMIL H. KREIDT

Pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran Church in Olive

"Come thou with us and we will do thee good"

Text: Numbers 10, 291

"Come Thou With Us and We Will Do Thee Good"

This is Moses' invitation to Hobab to cast his lot with the people of Israel, to join the Old Testament Church of God. As an inducement to accept, Moses holds forth the promise of good, benefit, and blessing. Even today the Church of Jesus Christ echos this invitation, appealing to men to enter her fold, to cast their lot with her. And she, too, holds out the promise of good. The Church of Christ seeks men to help, benefit, and bless them. "Come thou with us and we will do thee good," is her constant invitation and unfailing promise.

Do you seek wisdom and understanding? Through the teachings of the Church "thou shalt understand the fear of the Lord, and find the knowledge of God. For the Lord giveth wisdom: out of His mouth cometh knowledge and understanding," Proverbs, 2, 5.6.

Do you covet riches? The Church will help you to find "the pearl of great price," whose possession justifies the sacrifice of all else, Matthew 13, 46.

Do you desire honor and high station? Jesus Christ tells you through His Church: "If any man serve Me, him will My Father honor," John 8, 26.

Would you have joy and pleasure, pure and unalloyed? The Church points the way to God "in whose presence is fullness of joy; at Whose right hand are pleasures forevermore," Psalm 16, 11.

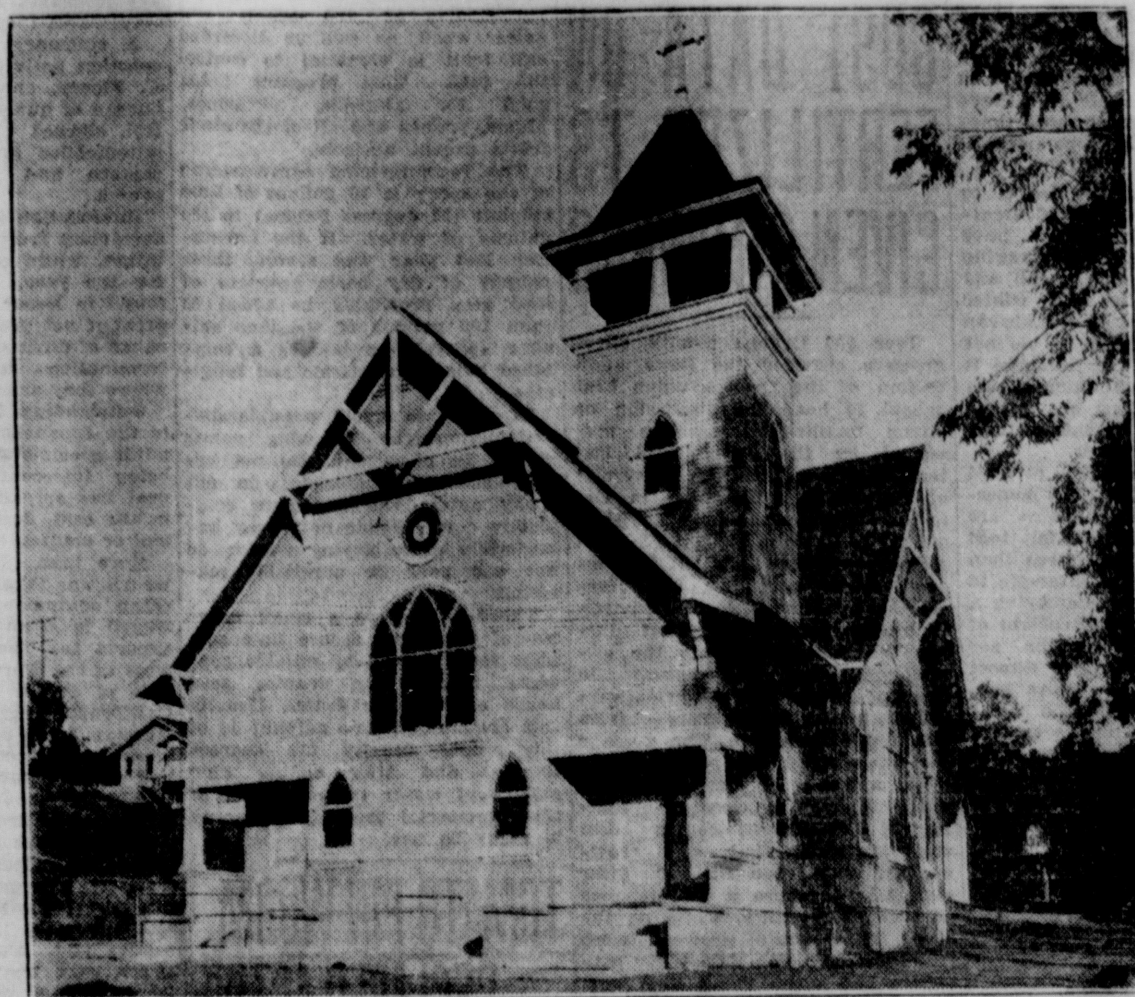

Do beauty and glory appeal to you? You will find them in the Church which preaches Jesus Christ, "Who shall change our vile body that it may be fashioned like unto His glorious body," Philippians 3, 21; in Whose appearing "we shall be like Him, for we shall see Him as He is," John 3, 2.

Truth and liberty have ever been the goal of men. Christ says: "If ye continue in My word, then are ye My disciples indeed; and ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free," John, 8, 31, 32.

Does sin vex and burden you? Harken unto these sweet words, published by the Church of Christ: "Be of good cheer, thy sins be forgiven thee," Matthew 9, 2.

Would you know the power of a righteous life? It is the crucified and risen Christ, proclaimed by His Church, "knowing this, that our old man is crucified with Christ, that the body of sin might be destroyed, that henceforth we should not serve sin, but yield ourselves and our members as instruments of righteousness unto God," Romans, 6, 9.13.

Does your heart crave comfort in the trials and disappointments of life? At the feet of Christ learn to say with Paul: "I reckon that the sufferings of this present time are not worthy to be compared with the glory that shall be revealed in us." "We know that all things work together for good to them that love God," Romans, 8, 18.28.

Olive St. Paul Lutheran Church

Do you dread the dark hour of death? The Church will enable you to banish that fear by leading you to the Christ, "Who through His death destroyed him that had the power of death, that is the devil, and delivered them who through fear of death were all their lifetime subject to bondage," Hebrews 2, 14.15.

Do you need peace with God? The Church proclaims Him, "Who is our peace," Ephesians, 2, 14.

Are these things good to have? Are they benefits and blessings? Millions have had them in the past; millions have them at present; you may have them. Accept the invitation of Christ's Church, "Come thou with us," and know from blessed experience the truth of her promise, "And we will do thee good."

FARM NEWS FROM EVERYWHERE

RED SCALE'S DISCUSSED BY PEST EXPERT

(Editor's note: Following is a talk given over radio station KREG January 19.)

By D. W. TUBBS
Deputy Agricultural Commissioner of Orange County

Red scale, chrysomphalus aurantii, was first described from New Zealand by W. M. Maskell in 1878. It has been brought there from Australia and probably originated in China. By 1900 it was established in California, coming undoubtedly from Australia.

The injury due to this scale is not only a loss of chlorophyll but also a toxic effect on the plant tissue, and in some cases an actual smothering effect on the stomata. Thus not only is fruit rendered unsalable but leaves and twigs are killed to such an extent that severe pruning is sometimes required. In fact, without the interference of natural enemies, infestations of this scale would eventually kill favored hosts if left untreated.

Sprays Developed
Oil sprays which could be used on citrus without excessive damage were developed. For a time it seemed that these sprays were the answer to the problem. Lemons particularly responded to the treatment and appeared to have new vigor, regain foliage and set more fruit.

It now appears that this temporary flush may have been due to the more efficient control of red spider which in certain foothill districts exists as a serious drain on the vigor of the trees.

Within a very few years it was found that the annual spray treatment alone in many cases was not sufficient to prevent a serious reinfestation by red scale.

Trees Protected

In an effort to use a relatively high dosage of cyanide without injury to the trees and fruit, the Hedges ranch in Orange county some years ago conceived the idea of spraying a block of trees a few days prior to the fumigation. A check-up on the results showed that there was not only a certain protection to the trees which were first sprayed, but also it was noted that on one side of the tree where it had been poorly covered (with spray), a very large percentage of the scale was still alive, while on the balance of the tree excellent results were obtained. On the same ranch when some comparisons of various spray oils were to be made, the sprayed plot was fumigated by mistake some 10 days after the oil was applied. Scale counts made by this office and the California Fruit Growers' exchange showed surprisingly high percentages of kill.

Effective on Fruit
Investigation has shown that the oil sprays are more effective on the fruit and foliage than on the branches or wood, while with fumigation the reverse is true. Thus the two treatments are in a sense complementary.

The mathematical advantages of the two different treatments can readily be appreciated. It is further possible that certain scales have built up an immunity to fumigation and others to spraying. These two treatments, therefore, could cover all possible circumstances. There is some evidence to show that oil spray temporarily causes the scale covering to relax its hold on the tree, thus exposing the scale body which may be more vulnerable to the "follow up" fumigation. This succession of the two treatments—oil spray followed by cyanide fumigation while the scale is exposed—has been the combination treatment.

Wide Popularity
The combination treatment if properly carried out, has given consistently good results and has gained in popularity until it is generally recommended for heavy or resistant red scale infestations.

There is some discussion at the present time concerning the possibility of fumigation followed by a short interval by the oil spray; in other words, the reverse of the former method giving equal results. There is probably not sufficient evidence to prove or disprove this possibility at the present time.

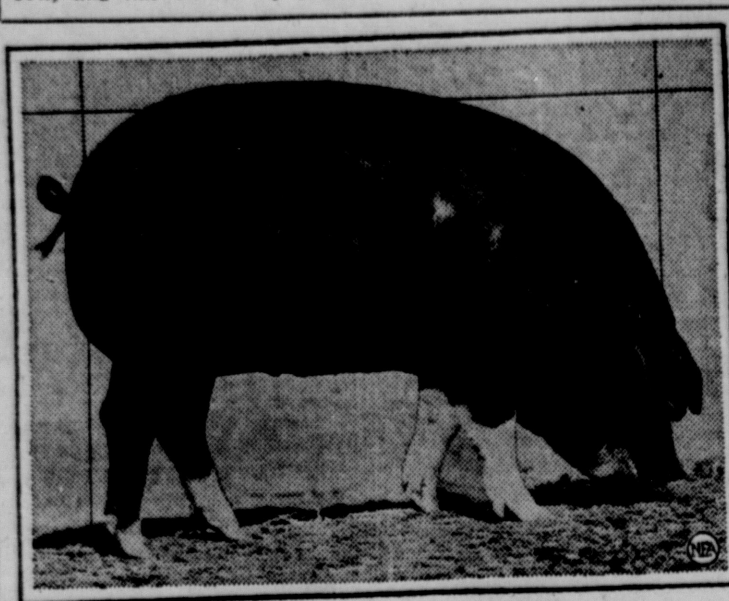

There are certain conditions which qualify the efficiency of the combination treatment. In several instances where fumigation was applied with in two or three days after spray treatment, poor results were obtained. This might be due to the inability of the cyanide to penetrate the fresh oil film.

Likewise some experiments have been conducted by a cyanide manufacturing company to show that the combination treatment is inefficient if fumigation is done later than a period of three to five weeks following the application of spray. This might be due to a difference in the time required or the oil to leave the tree.

Weather Conditions
Neither the oil sprays nor cyanide fumigation are without injurious effects. Fumigation in dosages sufficient to be effective on red scale must be given in late summer or winter. Oils applied when the weather is too hot are lost from the trees too rapidly to be effective on the scale. On the other hand, if the heavier oils remain on the trees too long in winter, they cause dead wood and oil soaked fruit.

HERE'S IDEAL PORKER

Rebber's Maid 40th, this sow is called, but it's no ordinary one. She is nationally famous, having been selected by the U. S. department of agriculture as the ideal market type. The sow is owned by the University of Idaho College of Agriculture, at Moscow, and has won many prizes.

Some orchardists who desire to spread out the expense of treatment over a longer period have adopted a program of spraying with an oil spray in the fall and then fumigating in late winter when a high dosage of cyanide can be used. While to date we do not have sufficient data to compare it with the fall combination treatment, several instances are reported of good control by this method.

Increased Cost
Although the carefully planned combination treatment has generally given good results, there are many growers who have felt that the increased cost was more than the grove could repay. Attempts to cut down expense by employing a single treatment for the control of heavy infestations or in the so-called resistant area have almost invariably resulted in severe loss. During the past season the University of California citrus experiment station staff has been carefully checking results with spray oil applied as a tank mix. The material used was available at a figure much below that of the standard commercial spray emulsions. There are still some phases of the work to be perfected, but the method used undoubtedly offer a much needed reduction in the cost of spraying, so that even more combination work can be done.

For winter work, when spray oils are not recommended, the only alternative is fumigation. This is the best single treatment for control of red scale on either oranges or lemons. Treatment given in January or February has in the past given very satisfactory results. A dosage of 100 to 110 per cent normal schedule of cyanide may be applied with safety to oranges, and 122 to 150 per cent is often used for lemons. These high dosages can only be employed when trees are quite dormant. Recommendations given by the agricultural commissioner's office for fumigation practice should be closely followed. In particular at this time of the year the grower should see that treatment is not started until late afternoon after danger of daylight has past. Daylight fumigation is not recommended as it might cause serious defoliation of the trees.

BANKRUPTCIES ON FARMS DECREASE
WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 24.—Farm bankruptcies during the past fiscal year declined 10 per cent from the number reported for 1929, according to figures compiled by the bureau of agricultural economics of the U. S. department of agriculture, from data collected by the office of the attorney general.

Farm bankruptcies for the 12 months ended June 30, 1930, numbered 4464 as compared with 4939 for 1929 and 5679 for 1928. The number for 1930 comprises 7.4 per cent of all bankruptcies as compared with 8.7 per cent in 1929. Farmers having recourse to bankruptcy proceedings during the fiscal year of 1930 represent the smallest number for any year since 1922 when 3236 cases were reported. Although the number of farmers falling through bankruptcies in 1930 is still much above those of pre-war years they were far below the number of such failures during several of the post-war years when the number reached a peak of 7872 in 1925.

Apple Marketing Bulletin Issued

BERKELEY, Jan. 24.—To gain a comprehensive view of the methods of marketing apples, to obtain information on market preferences, and to determine possibilities for improvement, a study was undertaken by the Giannini Foundation of Agricultural Economics and the division of pomology, of the University of California. This survey has been completed, and the information now is published in Bulletin 501 of the College of Agriculture, titled Marketing California Apples.

This bulletin, a contribution from the Giannini Foundation, may be obtained free by writing the College of Agriculture at Berkeley.

LIME SULPHUR STATE WATCHES SUGGESTED FOR TOURISTS FOR PEACH TREES PLANTS' PESTS

BY ERIC E. EASTMAN
Assistant Farm Advisor

Two applications of lime sulphur, one at this season of maximum dormancy, and the second application when the buds begin to swell and before the first blossoms open, will control all of the usual diseases and pests of the peach in California which can be reached by a spray treatment. Spray injury has been reported from spraying in the bloom with lime sulphur, and if applied late, may not effectively control leaf curl.

The peach twig borer is perhaps the most serious pest in Orange county and a thorough spraying with lime sulphur at this time, combined with a thorough cleaning and burning of all prunings, particularly of the small and newer wood, as well as discarded cull fruit is essential to control the pest. This program holds good for almonds, nectarines, plums, prunes and all of the stone fruits except apricots.

The recommended concentration of the spray is 10 gallons of lime sulphur (32 degrees Baume) to 100 gallons of water. If the infestation last year was severe, three pounds of dry basic arsenate of lead may profitably be added to each 100 gallons of the lime sulphur spray, thus making a combined poison insecticide and fungicide.

In order to avoid possible dissatisfaction the following points should be observed: Do not use over strength materials; do not spray unless the trees are completely dormant; do not spray immediately after drying winds; do not use poor or unreliable materials.

Those who have a small number of trees can secure lime sulphur ready mixed by reliable concerns from their nearest seed house or fertilizer dealer. Usually this commercial lime sulphur is of the proper density (32 degrees Baume) and after adding nine gallons of water to one gallon of the commercial product, the spray is ready to use.

TOMATO PIN WORM DECLARED ACTIVE

A check up on the pin worm situation in the county this week showed that very few of the small fields have been plowed and the old tomato plants burned, as recommended in November. In all of the fields visited the adult pin worm moths, small bluish-gray moths, were found in large numbers, and some larvae were likewise present. Apparently the fruit is too cold at this season to harbor the larvae, but they were found working on the leaves, in restricted numbers.

Apparently the cold weather delays the laying and hatching of eggs and the moths simply congregate about the tomato vines and await the coming of more favorable weather. Green plants or green portions of plants were found in an abundance of tomatoes on which to winter over, there were a considerable number of black nightshade plants and some pepper plants observed which would serve the purpose.

cast over the entire ground, except in small trees, to reach all the roots instead of only part of the roots.

8. Fertilizers should be broad-

BY ELWOOD SQUIRES
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
(Special to The Register)

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 24.—Come west, young man, come west—but leave bugs and diseases harmful to California agriculture at home.

The golden state daily welcomes more than 5000 motorists, who pass through the 25 inspection stations maintained by the department of agriculture on main highways, but extermination awaits the plant pest which attempts to "crash the gate."

It wasn't more than a half century ago that the codlin moth and the San Jose scale were two of California's few pest problems.

Today the list is a long one and each year presents new phases of the perpetual battle to exclude, control or exterminate—all of which are problem increases.

A summary of 1930 border inspection activities submitted to A. C. Fleury, chief supervisor of the bureau of quarantine and pest control, showed 675,053 inspections of automobiles arriving by northern, eastern and southern interstate routes.

Interception of pests of citrus and deciduous fruit, cotton, sweet potatoes, white pine and alfalfa for the year. Many others were found in lesser numbers but of as great if not greater importance because of difficulty in control or extermination experienced in areas where they are found.

Outstanding in the latter group is the Japanese beetle, two lots of adult specimens and one of larvae intercepted last year. The pest has spread over a large area in the east, despite efforts to control or eradicate it.

More than 100 lots of alfalfa weevil was taken from bedding and camp equipment of tourists. The weevil is a dangerous threat, for experts say that once established a lot of severe damage to one of California's greatest industries. Numerous lots of cotton boll weevil were intercepted before this pest had an opportunity to establish itself in the state's young but thriving cotton industry.

Other outstanding newer pests found were larvae of the cherry fruit fly, nut weevils found in pecan and hickory nuts, strawberry root weevils, Colorado potato beetles and many citrus scales. There were nearly 3200 more interceptions of citrus fruit on account of citrus canker quarantine than in 1929, the total of such interceptions being 6994.

"More than 3550 specimens of insects representing 400 species were taken by our inspectors from 1355 automobiles during the year," said Fleury. "One person even tried to introduce a pair of prairie dogs to aid ground squirrels and gophers in digging up the California landscape."

LOAN OFFICES OPENED
Four field offices for handling loans to farmers in drought and storm stricken areas in the United States are to be opened by the U. S. department of agriculture. They will be located at St. Louis, Memphis, Grand Forks, N. D., and Washington, D. C. Applications for loans should be made at these offices.

EXTENDING SERVICE
The U. S. department of agriculture's extension service distributed about 26,000,000 popular publications, over 10,000,000 farmers' bulletins, and furnished to newspapers about 3000 informative articles on agriculture during the past year. This is in addition to daily radio talks.

WOMAN ASSISTS FARMERS

Mary Mims . . . farm community organizer . . . she advises farmers how to organize . . . she leads hundreds of voices in singing at her community fairs.

Citizens of Communities In Louisiana Aided By Specialist

BATON ROUGE, La., Jan. 24.—Agriculture in Louisiana is on a better foundation today than it was five years ago, despite the business depression, and it's all due to a woman, Mary Mims, state community organizer.

"Louisiana's Mary" as she is affectionately known throughout the state, has efficiently organized 200 communities so that the living standards of farmers have been raised and their incomes have been steadily mounting as the result of scientific knowledge of agriculture given them by Miss Mims.

Her plan is simple. Every citizen of each community is included in the program. Monthly meetings are held in each center, at which Miss Mims takes charge. These meetings are sponsored by the Louisiana Farm bureau and state university extension department. Each community works out its own objectives according to its requirements.

Programs have a threefold purpose—business or economic, civic and health, and social, with a spiritual theme woven throughout. In the first connection, Miss Mims aids in organizing the community work for grading of farm and dairy products, and organizing community fairs which serve as agents for grading and improving livestock and agricultural products.

Through the second and third part of her program she strives to improve the health of the community, for beautification of the home and public grounds, and finally to improve the recreational centers of the community.

A specific instance of the good she has done is at Enon, in Washington parish. Each dairyman was conveying his own milk to the railroad and losing a lot of time and money thereby. She established a central milk station at which all farmers delivered their milk, and the community prospered. She built a new school, and made other public improvements. In addition to improving each family in the community now has an orchard and a flock of the same kind of chickens. She showed them how.

EXPECT CROWD FOR ANAHEIM WALNUT MEET

A large attendance is expected at the Inter-County Walnut Growers' Institute at Anaheim this year February 28. This is the 13th annual institute held under the auspices of the walnut growers' department of the farm bureau. The institute has become a regular institution in California's walnut industry and is looked forward to by a great many growers. Attendance often runs as high as 600.

Irrigation practices will receive a prominent place in the discussion. Prof. S. H. Beckett will talk on his two years' investigations work concerning the moisture requirement of walnut trees. His observations are very conclusive and very interesting and give an accurate picture of walnut requirements.

European walnut conditions will be discussed by H. E. Wahlberg, farm advisor of Orange county, who has recently returned from a five-months tour of Europe, during which time he visited the more important walnut producing areas of that continent.

Walnut blight investigations have been going on for four years. The conclusions of this blight investigation will be given at the institute by Dr. B. A. Rudolph of the University of California. Blight is probably the most important disease of walnuts. It causes great losses in nearly all sections. Dr. Rudolph has some very important information to convey to the growers. The meeting will be held at the high school in Anaheim.

IRRIGATION IS DISCUSSED IN NEW BULLETIN

DAVIS, Jan. 24.—How many fruit growers have a clear conception of the purpose of cultivation in orchards? What does cultivation do? Does cultivation conserve moisture? What is the effect of cultivation on the formation of plow sole?

These are but a few of the questions answered in the agricultural extension service circular 50 "Essentials of Irrigation and Cultivation in Orchards." This publication, written by Dr. F. J. Veilmeyer and Dr. A. H. Hendrickson, is just off the press at the University of California and may be obtained free by writing the College of Agriculture at Berkeley or Davis, or from any farm advisor.

In general, the cultivation of orchards in California has become less frequent and shallower than formerly, when it was believed that cultivation conserved soil moisture, say the authors. They believe some tillage is necessary, but that it should be directed toward some useful purpose, such as the removal of weed competition, the control of certain insect pests, the preparation of a seed bed for cover crops, and the preparation of the surface soil for other orchard operations such as irrigation, spraying, harvesting and the removal of prunings.

The formation of plow sole, they say, usually follows in orchards which are cultivated when the soil is too wet. Suggestions are given in the circular regarding the cultivation of orchards so that the useful purpose of cultivation may be obtained without the deleterious ones. The subject of irrigation is treated in a similar way and the effects of different soil moisture conditions on the trees and fruit are briefly discussed.

SAYS ORCHARD CARE MUST GO ON IN COUNTY

BY H. E. WAHLBERG
County Farm Advisor

One of the worst things possible during the period of depression is to economize in the care of orchards that permanent injury results. There are certain operations in the walnut orchard that are absolutely essential for the vigor and health of trees and there are other operations which are of secondary importance which can be dispensed with without danger of permanent injury. The two primary essentials of walnuts are irrigation and pest control, with particular reference to codling moth. Trees must not be allowed to go dry or they will be handicapped in development of crop and in production of new wood and fruit buds for ensuing years.

Codling moth control program must not be neglected and the application of codling moth will quickly build up to a point of rendering walnuts unfit for marketing. Examples of neglect can be seen in nearly all sections where codling moth exists. In some instances the crop ran as high as 24 to 40 per cent wormy. Annual spraying is the only way to handle the situation.

Cultivation can be reduced to a minimum. Just cultivate enough to control the weeds and make your furrows. You can forget about dust mulch to conserve moisture. Kill the weeds; that is all that is necessary. Pruning is not an absolute essential. It is better to prune a little every year than a lot once in a while, but the pruning program can be passed up if needs be.

The big thing to remember is that walnut trees live a long time. One or two years of neglect may injure their production power several years to come. Better take care of the long time investment as much as possible.

Plan School For Center and 4-H Groups In County

One couple from each farm center in the county and one from each 4-H club have been selected to attend the school in rural recreation, which is to be conducted in Orange county by John Bradford of the Playground Association of America.

Mr. Bradford has been in California for several years training groups of rural leaders in the art of conducting recreation programs. This is the first season that Orange county has been able to secure his services and the chosen few are looking forward to a pleasurable and profitable series of meetings with Mr. and Mrs. Bradford. The meetings will be held in the Women's clubhouse in Garden Grove, and the enrollment is limited to the 50 selected members.

HOME AGENT HERE JANUARY 27 TO 29

Miss Maybell Eager, home demonstration agent at large, will be in Orange county January 27 to 29, for the purpose of assisting in organizing girls' 4-H clubs. Until the present time the 4-H work in Orange county has been restricted to agricultural projects, and girls who are not "farmer-minded" have consequently been denied the privileges of 4-H membership. As a consequence of conferences in Berkeley, Miss Eager will be available from time to time, as occasion demands, until July 1, to assist in getting the girls' clubs started, and their leaders trained in the conducting of the work. The demand for Miss Eager's services came from the girls of the county who desire the same sort of service as has been available to their brothers.

Girls of from 10 to 20 years of age are eligible to join the 4-H clubs. A club consists of six or more members supervised by one or more adult local leaders.

KREG-Fox Theaters Frolic On Tonight

HEADLINERS OF VAUDEVILLE TO RULE THE AIR

The "horn of plenty" in the vaudeville world is full to overflowing today for the KREG-Fox West Coast theaters frolic program and tonight it will flood the studio with an array of artists and a variety of entertainment that will make the air crack and sparkle with wit and harmony.

And to add to the interest of the program, Newman Sprowl, Fox West Coast theater manager here, announced today that tonight he will explain over KREG how free tickets to one of the Fox theaters here may be obtained.

Sprowl, who will be master of ceremonies tonight, announced the complete program today and here it is:

1. The entire West Coast orchestra of seven pieces.
2. Madame Lazelle, clairvoyant, who will answer questions phoned in to KREG.
3. Earl Kennedy and his blind musicians, with Margaret Brenner and Jimmy Lowes, featuring accordion, saxophone, banjo and piccolo music.
4. McCormick and Wallace, ventriloquists.
5. Orville and Stamm, comedians, with their singing dog.
6. Harriet and Bill Hutchins, radio comedians.
7. Bee Ho Gray, and company, musical cowboys.
8. The "Mystery Musical Saw."

From 10:30 p. m. to midnight these vaudeville stars will be on the air, with every minute crowded with entertainment that will command the interest of every radio listener.

Radio Will Put Church Services On Air Tomorrow

The broadcast of church services by KREG tomorrow will come from the Spurgeon Memorial Methodist church, South, of which the Rev. C. M. Aker is pastor, and from the First Baptist church, of which the Rev. Harry Evan Owings is pastor.

WHAT LAWS!

PARIS.—Children will no longer blow toy trumpets and toot tin whistles in the streets of France if a new law proposed is passed and placed in effect. The main objection to the instruments is not the noise they make, but the likelihood of their passing germs between children who trade their instruments between one another. They are classed as "potent spreaders of disease."

In Southern India the Brahmins will not allow their wells to be used by men of low caste, and even prohibit them to walk on certain roads.

PRUNING

January is a good month in which to prune roses and many varieties of shrubs and small trees used in your home landscape. Deciduous fruit trees and shrubs should be pruned SOON. Let us do your pruning at reasonable rates.

KREG PROGRAM BY CHILDREN IS ANNOUNCED

Lorene Croddy, director of the KREG children's hour which will begin on the Santa Ana radio station next Monday, announced today the first program which will be presented by a group of young artists including Junior Kavenaugh, popular child entertainer of this city. The entertainment will be heard from 5:30 to 6 p. m.

Junior Kavenaugh has appeared at the Beverly Hills hotel, Wilshire Square theater, Fox theater at Whittier, Fox West Coast theater here, where he won first prize in a juvenile contest, and also at many club gatherings in this section with song and dance selections.

The "Youngest Quartet" will make its radio bow to KREG on Monday. The group includes Barbara Watson, 5, of Tustin; Virginia Riehl, 6, of Tustin; Rosine Ray, 4, of Orange, and Frances Irwin, 5, of Orange. Rosine Ray and Virginia Riehl also will give readings.

Sylvia White, 6, of Santa Ana, will present violin numbers, and Bernard Fields, 13, of Santa Ana, will play piano solos.

Miss Croddy, in announcing the program today, said:

"Every child should have something constructive to occupy his leisure. If a child enjoys and is enthusiastic about music, drama or dancing, the parents will find the problem of keeping the child in the right company and environment much easier."

"In promoting this children's hour, we hope to provide entertainment for the children and the parents and at the same time give the children of Orange county an opportunity to give enjoyment to other people by appearing on these programs."

"We want to have an orchestra for some of our entertainment and that means that those children not playing solos, can still appear through the group work."

CHAS. RUGGLES IS FEATURED IN TALKIE VERSION

Charles Ruggles, favorite comedian, has an unique assignment in his next picture, "Charlie's Aunt," the Columbia comedy, produced by Christie, scheduled to come to the Fox Broadway Theatre Sunday, Monday and Tuesday.

Charlie Ruggles has been singled out for an unusual honor. He is to play the first female impersonator in talking films. He is given the opportunity to pioneer. He is the first female impersonator to try a falsetto on the screen with the exception of the brief interval that Leon Chaney appeared as an old lady in "The Unholy Three." Charlie wears skirts, a curly, silky wig, a shiny black silk dress with lace and a perky bonnet. You'd never suspect who was hiding behind those skirts if you weren't told so before hand.

It isn't a very easy role to play. It was a different story in silent films. Julian Eltinge, famous impersonator, only had to look like a woman—but Charlie, physically endowed with a healthy, bass voice, has to assume a squeaking "soprano" and sound as well as look like a woman. It is a difficult assignment but not beyond the capabilities of ever-dependable Charlie. He enjoys mastering problems and besides it gives him a chance to sober up (in the films anyway) after the long siege of "drunk" roles he has played. He plays the perfect lady. Well, not so perfect on second thought. The aunt Donna Lucia D'Alvadorez, Charlie's aunt from Brazil, involves the cast of "Charlie's Aunt" into a series of escapades from which they have a merry time disentangling themselves.

Third Travel Section Divides Membership For Luncheon

Membership of the Third Travel section of the Eboli society was temporarily divided yesterday afternoon when members whose names follow alphabetically from the thirteenth letter to "z" entertained the division from "a" to "m". Mrs. J. F. Richards acted as hostess.

At 12:30 o'clock the luncheon was served at tables gay with colorful spring flowers and pastel-tinted nut cups. Place cards added a strikingly modern touch to the scene, for they were tiny black and white globes representing the two hemispheres. These were made by Mrs. Richards's daughter, Mrs. Thomas Tourant, and were especially appropriate as Mrs. Sam Nau, speaker of the day, told of her travels in France and Germany. Mrs. C. A. Westgate was in charge of the luncheon.

Mrs. C. E. Blacow, leader of the section, presided during the business session which followed early in the afternoon. Mrs. C. C. Vielleit of Los Angeles gave a most interesting talk on "Health".

Those present were Mesdames F. L. Andrews, C. E. Blacow, C. P. Boyer, O. S. Catland, A. N. Cox, A. M. Gardner, W. W. Hoy, M. M. Holmes, C. H. Humphrey, Mary Hutchings, S. A. Jones, B. B. Kellogg, J. B. Kester, E. L. Madden, Sam Nau, F. P. Nickey, O. M. Robbins, J. F. Richards, J. Edmund Snow, A. Thorndike, Hugh Wiley, A. C. Westgate, C. Vielleit, W. H. McPeak, J. R. Watkins, and the Misses Jennie Burnett, Lucy Carter, Blanche Collins, Mayme Havens and Gertrude Minor. Mrs. Allen Saunders was a special guest of the day.

Surprises Feature Klean Kut Affair In Long Beach

Last evening's meeting of the Klean Kut club when husbands of members were guests and Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Couch were hosts in their home in Long Beach, was incentive for two surprises, for the hosts were presented with a handsome gift in honor of their tenth wedding anniversary and John Turton was given an equally desirable present in observance of his birthday anniversary.

A yellow and blue color scheme which was carried out throughout the evening was first evidenced in the stately bouquets which adorned the rooms. Bridge was the diversion of the evening and when tallies were added it was found that Mrs. E. T. Read and O. F. Turner held high scores. Mrs. John Turton and Mr. Bradley second high and Mrs. Roy Gowdy and George Coking low.

At a late hour the hostess served a tempting buffet supper.

Those sharing Mr. and Mrs. Couch's hospitality were Messrs. Sanford, Eugene Reif, Roy Gowdy, George Coking, O. F. Turner, J. F. Jacoby, Jesse Wright, John Turton, H. D. McVain, Mrs. L. A. Turner and Mr. Bradley of this city and Miss Johnson of Long Beach.

D. A. V. Auxiliary Will Give Card Party As Veterans' Benefit

Plans are nearing completion for the benefit bridge party which Jack Fisher Disabled American Veterans' auxiliary is to give in Legion hall next Thursday night, January 29, and from the demand for tickets and tables, Mrs. Harry Pickard and her co-workers anticipate an unusually large crowd at the affair.

Mrs. Carl Burns is general chairman of the evening, with Mrs. A. F. Jones, Mrs. Louis A. Riehl, Mrs. Charles Spurrier and Mrs. W. J. Clark to complete her committee. They are arranging many attractive features including decorations, tallies, prizes and refreshments.

Only bridge will be played, but players may suit their own wishes in pivoting at individual tables or joining those who progress. Those who fail to obtain tickets in advance may secure them at the door on the night in question, as a group of tables will be reserved for late comers.

BRIDE-ELECT

Miss Gladys Holston of Fullerton, will become the bride of Clarence Bischoff of Pacific Beach, on Monday, March 16, the twenty-fourth anniversary of the marriage of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Holston. She has been complimented at various parties since announcement was made of the betrothal and chosen wedding date.

Bride-elect of March Is Made Honor Guest At Gift Shower

Miss Gladys Holston of Fullerton, whose marriage to Clarence Bischoff of Pacific Beach and La Jolla, will take place March 16, the twenty-fourth wedding anniversary of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Holston of East Chapman avenue, was honored Monday night with a surprise shower given in the home of Mrs. Albert Snyder, 202 North Malden avenue, Fullerton.

Valentine tallies and linens, with scarlet flowers were used in the home. Bridge prizes, three of the most varied clothes brushes, went to the one scoring high at each of the three tables in play. Miss Julia Jewett, Mrs. Charles Sanford and Miss Gertrude White.

After the bridge awards a game was introduced in which the players were blindfolded and given scissors to snip loose a suspended heart. When Miss Holston was blindfolded, the heart was loosened for her and she was rewarded with a heart-shaped box filled with tiny heart bearing clues to the hiding place of her gifts. Oven dishes, crystalware, sugar and cream, and tea sets were among the lovely articles.

Later in the evening a two-course supper was served by Mrs. Snyder, who was assisted in hostess duties by Miss Lorraine Rauspe. Others present were Miss Marjorie Schultz, Miss Margaret Crook and Mrs. A. E. Holston of Fullerton; Miss Bertha Page of Buena Park; Miss Dorothy Little and Miss Marguerite Williams, La Habra.

Aeolian Chorus Has Beach Luncheon

Following rehearsal at the church recently, members of the Aeolian chorus of the First Presbyterian church motored to Newport Beach where they were guests of Mrs. W. W. Anderson. A delectable luncheon was served early in the afternoon. A social time followed, and during this period music was written for the minstrel show to be given in the near future.

Those present, other than Mrs. Anderson were Mesdames J. H. Nicholson, Cora Ross, S. A. Clem, Alice Rugg, M. V. Hamilton, Carl Diederick, Vall Crawford, John Sauers, Edith Redford, Zitiella Bacon, Margaret Suddaby, Lula Johnson, E. L. Morrison, E. B. Sprague, P. E. Dearth, Alice Rez, Guy Christian, Edith Osborn, Alfred Koepsel, J. Hancock, A. C. Beckman, Gladys Lauderbach, Miss Ruth Armstrong and Miss Berta Armstrong.

Swanner Home Offers Setting For Buffet Dinner and Bridge

A group of guests assembled last night in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Swanner, 2405 Valencia street, enjoyed one of the delightful buffet dinners and friendly evenings for which the home is noted, and the first of a series of informal affairs which Mrs. Swanner is planning for the late winter and early spring months.

Vivid carnations added their color and fragrance to the charm of hospitality, and were used on the table arranged for the entire guest group in the big living room where places were sought after each chose the delicacies which most appealed from the inviting array of dishes on the dining room buffet and table.

Diners included in addition to the hosts, Mr. and Mrs. Swanner, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Dana, Mr. and Mrs. Edmund West, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Hays, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Welsh, Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Barker, Dr. and Mrs. Harvey M. Spears, Miss Margaret Pateron and Kemper Taylor.

In the bridge contest of the after-dinner hours, Mr. and Mrs. Welsh showed the largest total in combined scores and received a set of graceful goblets. YOUNG BUSINESS MAN WINS ATTRACTIVE EASTERN BRIDE

Returning as a bride to this city where she has visited so frequently, and where she achieved such signal success in producing the entertaining Eboli play, "The Womanless Wedding," Mrs. Roscoe Conklin (Winifred Miller) has found a warm welcome awaiting her among the young people of the city. Her marriage to the circulation manager of The Register, was an event of December 29 in Escondido, Mich., Mr. Conklin having taken a mid-winter vacation from his duties on the newspaper to go east for his bride. The young people will be at home to their friends after February 1 in the Magnolia apartments on North Broadway. Mrs. Conklin is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Fred W. Miller, 424 West Walnut street.

Two Charming Girls Are Complimented At Shower

A recent bride and a potential nurse were called upon to share guest honors last night at a delightfully intimate little bridge party given by Mrs. I. J. Lee of Bristol street, complimenting Mrs. Roscoe Conklin, (Winifred Miller) a holiday bride, and Miss Janet Eljah who tomorrow enters upon her nurses' training course in Los Angeles.

In perfecting her plans, Mrs. Lee permitted each of her young honorees to believe that the party was a courtesy for the other, so that they were equally surprised when the climax of the evening came, and each was showered with gifts.

Preceding this enjoyable feature, was a bridge contest in which Miss Betty Smith, scoring high, was rewarded with a cake plate in shining ebony glass while to Miss Eljah was presented the consolation prize of a jar of bath salts.

In arranging the two card tables for serving an inviting salad course, Mrs. Lee used pretty linens and baskets of sweet peas. The table where Mrs. Conklin was seated, had smiling brides for place cards, while at Miss Eljah's table, say hat boxes suggested the journey and career upon which she will embark tomorrow.

As the refreshment hour drew to a close, each honor guest was overwhelmed when a large box of miscellaneous gifts was placed before her. Those chosen for Miss Eljah were personal gifts which she will find of use in her work and studies, while Mrs. Conklin found charming things for her new home.

Sharing Mrs. Lee's hospitality were Miss Eljah, Mrs. Conklin, Mrs. Burt Douglas of Orange; Mrs. George Burroughs of Anaheim; Miss Eula Kirkwood, Miss Lucille Bermann and Miss Betty Smith.

Church of the Messiah Presented Program In Parish Hall

It was before a responsive audience that students of the Visel studios gave a number of clever readings last evening when they were presented in the parish hall of the Church of the Messiah by a group of musicians of the city. Miss Lorene Croddy directed the musical numbers. Mrs. Marshall Harnois, social chairman, was in charge of arrangements for the affair.

Readings were especially well received and included cuttings from "Arche and Mehtabel" by Don Marquis, given by Miss Marjorie Gowan, and "Entertaining Sister's Beau" by Miss Nancy Lauri.

Cloy Francis, Walter Workman, George Bonecutt and Ed Rogers. Duncan Harnois acted as accompanist at the piano. Cloy Francis sang a solo, "O Rest in the Lord" by Mendelssohn. Duet numbers were given by Miss Lorene Croddy and Miss Marietta Limbaugh.

Refreshments were served to conclude the delightful evening.

Little Lad Welcomes Playmates On His Third Birthday

Wee lads and lassies were made very happy indeed on Tuesday afternoon of this week, when Mrs. Kemp Elliott, 714 South Garnsey street, entertained in honor of the third birthday anniversary of her small son, Kemp McCoy Elliott Jr., better known to his playmates as "Mikie".

The children spent a merry afternoon with the tops and big balloons in readiness for them, and Master Mikie had the best time of all, opening the many packages which fell to his fortunate lot. After the interval of play, the children were taken to the pretty rock garden at the rear of the home where the table was laid for refreshments.

In the very center was a large white cake with three yellow candles and at each place a cookie wagon, heaped with fruit jello, was drawn by little frosted animal cookies. The pretty yellow and white color scheme was to be noted in every detail of the afternoon as well as the refreshment interval, and Mikie received his guests in a cunning flannel suit and sweater of delicate yellow.

Children sharing the enjoyable birthday party planned by Mrs. Elliott, were Betty Jean Drake, Kathryn Hildebrand, Betty Jane Smith, Stanley Hays, Donald Hildebrand, Margie Dale Hayes, Innolee Elliott, Patty Elliott, and the small honor guest, three-year-old "Mikie" himself.

Scottish Celebration Draws Santa Anans To Long Beach

When Clan MacDonald of Long Beach, together with the Lady MacDonald lodge, presented the third annual Burns celebration on Wednesday evening in the Long Beach Moose hall, there were several Santa Anans of Scottish descent present to share the varied pleasures of the evening. These included the program featuring the "Lad was born in Kyle", 122 years ago, the supper menu eloquent of Scotland and dancing which followed.

Fully 350 Scots, brave and bonny, enjoyed the supper which included such typical dishes as haggis (with Clansman John MacKay as haggis bearer, champion tattles with the roast beef, MacDonald dumplings with Lochaber sauce, and of course "sweeties" among the other good things.

Pipe Major William Matheson saw to the spirited skirl of the pipes as the diners sought their places, and later led in the formal program, with everyone joining in singing "America" and "Scots Wha Hae Wi' Wallace Bleed."

"The Immortal Memory" was the subject of the principal address by the Rev. Thomas P. Byrnes, while character songs and readings were varied by such dance numbers as the Highland Fling by Miss Jessie Matheson to pipe accompaniment, and instrumental numbers.

Mr. and Mrs. George Phillips, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Blanchon and John Riddell were among Santa Anans present for the entire evening, while Mr. and Mrs. J. Frank Burke and Mrs. Harry Azus attended the concert.

Mrs. McFadden succeeded in arranging that her mother should remain at home that afternoon, so that conspiring friends should not arrive to find their honoree missing. Plans moved like clockwork, and the merry conspirators had their reward in the undoubted amazement of their hostess when she saw her friends arrive in a group. The bore with them, a beautiful cluster of spring blossoms which added charm to the scene when card tables were placed for a bridge contest.

Mrs. Larry Golden scored high in the ensuing play, with Mrs. Clarence E. Morse second. Each was rewarded with a pretty gift, for the guests had neglected no detail of a successful party. Their plans included refreshments as well, so Mrs. Jernigan arranged the card tables with some of her lovely linens, and with attractive black crystal for serving the ice cream and rich home-made cake brought by the merry-makers.

Mrs. James T. Carter came over from Long Beach for the event, joining Mesdames C. T. Cleland, Larry Golden, Harry J. Roberts, Thomas R. Overton, Joseph Stone, A. W. Getchell, Eugene L. Helms, Clarence Morse, Roland Kloess, I. A. Mechem, Amanda Holmes, Maude Swarthout, the hostess, Mrs. Jernigan, her two sisters, Mrs. Sybil Wilson and Mrs. John Bruns, and her daughter, Mrs. McFadden.

Installation Rites Are Observed By Pythian Sisters

With an interested audience composed of scores of Pythian Sisters of the Santa Ana lodge and many visiting members from Tustin and other nearby lodges, new officers were installed with much ceremony Wednesday night at the meeting of Santa Ana Pythian Sisters in Knights of Pythian hall.

Mrs. V. C. Shidler as installing officer, was assisted in her duties by Mrs. J. W. Anderson and Mrs. Teresa McMullin, and in the ritualistic ceremony, Mrs. Frank Wasson surrendered the gavel of authority after an unusually pleasant year as most excellent chief, to Mrs. Roy C. Butler who was duly inducted into that office.

The staff installed to serve with Mrs. Butler for the coming twelve-month, consisted of Mrs. Archie Perkins, senior; Mrs. P. N. Chapin, junior; Mrs. Edward Coehms, manager; Mrs. J. D. Sanborn, mistress of records and correspondence; Mrs. C. H. Powers, mistress of finance; Mrs. R. L. Stauffer, protector, and Mrs. Cora Wood, guard.

In the course of the ceremonial, each retiring officer and each incoming officer was presented with a cluster of red and white carnations until the big lodge room blossomed like a garden with the fragrant flowers. There were many additional gifts, for Mrs. Wasson remembered each one of her officers with a pretty California scene, softly colored and framed attractively. In turn she was presented with her past chief's pin and certificate by the general lodge, while similar gifts were given Mrs. William Lawrence who has served as mistress of finance for three consecutive years.

A handsome linen tablecloth was another lodge gift to Mrs. Wasson, while Mrs. Lawrence was remembered with a set of rose-colored salad plates. Each acknowledged the thoughtfulness of the general membership with an appropriate little talk.

The remainder of the evening was spent socially when members and guests were invited to the banquet room. There the tables were arranged in the form of a hollow square with a deep red exclamation blazon at each corner, rivaling the color of the flickering red tapers and the autumn leaves which were arranged with fern sprays down the center of the board. Refreshments were served in two appetizing courses with Mrs. M. R. Kellogg, Mrs. E. O. Barham and Mrs. J. A. Gardiner as the committee in charge.

Mrs. McFadden succeeded in arranging that her mother should remain at home that afternoon, so that conspiring friends should not arrive to find their honoree missing. Plans moved like clockwork, and the merry conspirators had their reward in the undoubted amazement of their hostess when she saw her friends arrive in a group. Santa Ana Home Made Attractive Setting For Nuptials

An abundance of greenery and poinsettias combined to form an attractive setting for a wedding which took place Wednesday at 2:30 p. m. in the home of Mrs. Lillie Hamilton, 816 North Ross street, when Mrs. Lida B. Shockley of Burbank and William P. Love of Huntington Park, exchanged vows. Mr. Love and the Hamilton family are friends of long standing, all having come from Texas some time ago.

Lohengrin's Wedding March was played by Mrs. Marvin B. Hamilton, and the bride couple took their place beneath a bower of ferns and smilax artistically arranged over the archway in the living room. The ceremony was one of charming simplicity with the friend and former pastor of the bridegroom, the Rev. W. T. Adams of Bellflower, as the officiating minister.

The bride chose a blue silk dress trimmed in white for the event, and with it were harmonizing accessories. There were no attendants.

Following congratulations, the newlyweds left amid a shower of rice, for a honeymoon trip, whose destination was not revealed. They will establish their home in Long Beach, where Mr. Love is in the real estate business.

Guests present at the wedding were Mrs. Lillie Hamilton, Mrs. and Mrs. Marvin B. Hamilton, Mrs. Marcia Hamilton, Mrs. C. C. Hinton, Miss Nellie Marie Hinton, and Miss Maurine Mathias, all of Santa Ana; Mrs. M. Birtcher of Compton, and the Rev. and Mrs. W. T. Adams, of Bellflower.

The MIXING BOWL by ANN MEREDITH

Eat Sufficient of Calcium-Rich Foods

I don't know whether biblical history ever chronicled the name of Job's wife, probably not, for the historian had too much to do listening to Job's grunts and groans to record the name of a mere, long-suffering wife. What I would like to know is this: Did Job's wife feed her family on soda biscuits, fried pork and potatoes, with heavy pie for dessert, or was she a good dietician and Job a bad actor, refusing to eat the green vegetables which the man of his day probably considered good cow feed?

History does not say that his crop of bulls was visited on him to test his piety. . . . sound proof that dieticians were just as proficient in guessing then as now. But there the story leaves us, and we must draw on our imagination to find what actually caused Job to get well.

My guess is that his wife had him at her mercy, flat on his back and helpless, so she just dished him with goat's milk, with eggs, and occasionally a few fresh figs. Later, when his appetite "came back," she graduated him to wheat cakes made from whole grain bruised into meal in a crude pestle, more eggs and goat's milk, and pot herbs cooked with a little lamb.

Presently his boils disappeared, but instead of attributing the cure to some mystifying cause, let's be scientific and honest and admit that diet cured Job, and the curative agent in the diet outlined was CALCIUM (lime).

What was good for Job is good for us. Eat sufficient of the calcium-rich foods and good health will be your lot.

TODAY'S RECIPES

Sweet Potato Puffs
1/4 pound butter, melted
1/2 cup boiling milk
Salt and pepper to taste
Marshmallows
Rice flakes

Cinnamon
Sweet potatoes, other than baked in their skins, must be rich and sugary to be really good. . . . that spells disaster to most of us, so I am glad to be able to offer you a way that is not quite so figure-wrecking.

Peel the sweets and boil tender. Drain and mash well. Heat the milk, melt the butter in it, sugar also, and whip this mixture, slowly into the mashed potato. When very light, yet firm, set aside to cool so that you can handle easily.

Take up a piece the size of an egg, pat and mould it to form a little blanket, place a marshmallow in the center, fold the blanket over and roll into oblong shape, this roll to be coated in rice flakes and flicked with a dash of cinnamon. Place the rolls on a buttered pan and brown them quickly in a hot oven just before serving them.

I have estimated 12 rolls as the number made from this recipe. The calories total about 2100 and of course everything that looks like energy calory is in here.

Fullerton

Miss Anna Adele Allee, daughter of John Allee, of Placentia, and Charles G. Cushing, son of Mrs. Dorothy Hart, of Fullerton, were married Wednesday at 8:15 a. m. before the altar of St. Mary's Catholic church with the Rev. Father Mortimer Murphy officiating for the double ring service.

The bride wore a long gown of virgin white chiffon, which fell in soft folds about her white slippers. Her veil of sheer lace was caught in her hair with a wreath of orange blossoms and tiny streamers tied with blossoms fell shoulder length in back of the improvised cap. Her huge shower bouquet was of crimson rosebuds and maidenhair ferns.

Miss Yvonne Allee, sister of the bride and maid of honor, wore a chiffon frock in phantom blue. She carried creamy rosebuds to harmonize with her golden slippers and her small hat was of gold mesh.

Attending Mr. Cushing as best man was Dominie Jambon of La Habra.

A group of 35 relatives and friends of Mr. and Mrs. Cushing left immediately after the ceremony for the John Allee home in Placentia, where a full course wedding breakfast awaited them. Here the bride cut her tiered cake and received the guests.

Following the breakfast Mr. and Mrs. Cushing left in their automobile for a northern trip, planning to be away a week or more. They will make their home in Buena Park following the honeymoon trip.

MUSIC LITERATURE ART

ALEXANDER Scriabine

BY RUTH ANDREWS

PART I
Perhaps no more fascinating musical personality has come out of Russia, the birthplace of so many famous musicians, than that supreme anarchist of musical creative art, Alexander Scriabine, whose unusual ways endeavoring to combine both sound and color, have created a tremendous furore on both continents during the past score of years.

Especially does Scriabine arrest the attention because of the intense individuality that is his, setting him definitely apart from that Nationalist group of Russian composers (Balakirev, Cui, Borodin, Moussorgsky, and Rimsky-Korsakoff) to whom the wealth of Slavic folk-songs formed a basis for the greater portion of their output.

There is no trace of this racial allegiance to the Russian tradition to be found in Scriabine, Paul Rosenfeld, one of the foremost of contemporary critics, has termed him "a universalist, one of those men into whom an age enters." Perhaps this explains the vast influence he has exerted upon younger composers of the past decade, as well as upon art circles other than musical.

Also, Scriabine's self-appointed mission as super-interpreter in musical language, of the mystic cult of theosophy, of which he was a devout follower, has played an important part in winning for him a large following among the numerous disciples of this occult religion.

Scriabine was born in historic Moscow, January 16, 1872. A sensitive, beauty-loving youth, he soon displayed creative gifts which first took a literary form. As a boy, he would write plays, and enact them for the amusement of his family circle.

His talent for the piano was also soon evident, but his practical-minded parents had decided upon the glories of a military career, so young Alexander's youthful education was received in a military school. The plan had to be abandoned, however, for the lure of music proved too strong. While in his teens, Scriabine left the Cadet Corps, and became a student at the famous Conservatory of Moscow.

Making rapid progress at the Conservatory, Scriabine studied piano with Safonoff, who had formerly conducted the New York Philharmonic for several years and composition with Taneiev and Arensky, equally noted as composers of the modern Russian school.

Young Scriabine's exceptional talent as a pianist won for him a gold medal at the Conservatory in 1892, when he was 21 years old. Filled with enthusiasm, he set forth on an extensive concert tour of Europe, and won for himself considerable renown, both as a pianist, and as a composer, since he already played recitals often entirely composed of his own composition. He spent considerable time in Paris, Brussels, and Amsterdam, and was well received by the elite, at that time a typical exponent of the romantic, Chopinesque style then popular in European salons of fashion.

Public life palled on Scriabine. Thoroughly intellectual, sensitive to the highest degree, of an exceedingly contemplative and spiritual nature, the excitement and display of the concert stage were not for him. He returned to Moscow when he was 27 to fill a newly accepted post as professor of piano at the Conservatory where he had formerly studied.

Scriabine held this responsible position for five years, leaving it finally, when his burning urge for composition would no longer be denied. During the remaining eleven years of his brief life, he was to devote himself wholly to composing, to the development of a new harmonic system that was to vastly stir musicians of two continents, to the service of both art and religion, upon whose altars he was to consecrate his unique genius and originality.

CURRENT MUSIC NEWS

SANTA ANA

Open Orchestra Rehearsals

Rehearsals for the new Orange County Philharmonic Orchestra, recently organized through the cooperation of committees composed of prominent musical leaders and business and professional men and women of Santa Ana, Anaheim, Fullerton and Orange, will open next Tuesday evening, January 27, and will be held in the Santa Ana Conservatory of Music, 806 North Main street, for the time being.

The new symphonic ensemble will include the personnel of the former Santa Ana Symphony Orchestra, with the addition of prominent musicians from all over the county, and will be directed by D. C. Clafford, former director of the Santa Ana Symphonic orchestra.

The new organization will be considerably augmented in size, and perfected in every way possible, so it may prove to be a great credit to this section. Musicians wishing to join the new organization for participation in the concert series to be presented in the various Orange county communities this season, are invited to be present at the first rehearsal of the organization next Tuesday night.

"Music Appreciation" Course
Mrs. Frances Hunt Besson of the music department of the Santa Ana city schools announces a course in music appreciation which is being offered free to the public each Tuesday evening, from 7 to 9 p. m. in the music room at Lathrop Junior high school on South Main street, under her direction.

Seven more meetings will be included in this series of lectures. Next Tuesday evening's program will deal with "Russian Music" which is unusually interesting and fascinating. Russian folk music will be discussed, and outstanding musical compositions from the works of Russian composers. Recordings or illustrations make the lectures doubly interesting.

Musical lovers of Santa Ana are cordially invited to attend this series, and to bring their friends with them.

Dr. Max von Schilling, distinguished German composer and conductor is director-in-chief of the organization. Gadekl Klare von Kullberg, Margaret Baumer, Emily Frich, Johannes Sembach, Max Roth, and other exceptional artists compose the company's personnel. The orchestra numbers 55 players.

Stress Radio's Popularity
In a recent address before the Advertising Club of Los Angeles, Federal Radio Commissioner Ben S. Fisher stated that this city and vicinity has approximately 25 radio stations, while Chicago, thrice the size of Los Angeles, possesses but 18, and New York with its teeming millions, boasts but 26.

There now are more than 600 broadcasting stations in the United States, and it is estimated that the receiving sets number 16,000,000, with the Pacific Coast figuring the most per capita—one to every four persons.

LONG BEACH

Long Beach Civic Chorus

The Long Beach Civic Chorus, Rolla Alford, director, will present "The Deacon's Masterpiece" at the Long Beach Municipal auditorium, January 26, accompanied by the Woman's Symphony orchestra.

Torreblanca's Tipica Orchestra
Something "entirely different" is assured the many local lovers of Spanish music and dancing who are planning to attend afternoon and evening concerts to be given by Torreblanca's internationally celebrated Tipica Mexican orchestra next Tuesday, January 27, in Long Beach Municipal auditorium. A special matinee at reduced rates has also been arranged for students.

Torreblanca's orchestra of 35 musicians is said to be unlike any other musical organization in the world, using no brass instruments, but instead instruments peculiarly Mexican, by which unusually haunting effects, insistent rhythms, and colorful tones are achieved.

Works of contemporary Mexican composers will be featured by the ensemble.

Special soloists who will also appear in connection with the Tipica orchestra, include Mme. Maria Romero, leading Mexican soprano, Jose d'Arratia, prominent tenor, a male quartet, a marimba band, and some of Mexico City's foremost artists of the dance.

Pomona College is anticipating the installation of a new Estey organ in the new college auditorium at Claremont, in the near future.

According to information received from the builders, the instrument will be a four-manual organ of 109 speaking stops, with 5990 pipes, and is to cost $50,000. It will rank as one of the largest organs of the many large instrumental organs now installed in Southern California.

The head of the organ department at Pomona college is Joseph W. Clokey, a concert organist of rare ability and originality have won him a recognized place as one of America's most gifted creative artists. His compositions have often been featured here in the past on programs of the Santa Ana Cantando club, popular male choral ensemble.

BOOK REVIEWS

By MARY BURKE KING

The American Leviathan by Charles A. Beard and William Beard, published by the MacMillan Company.

"The American Leviathan" is almost eight hundred pages of solid reading—and on political economy which to many people is a dry-as-dust subject. Of course the thing for most of us to do with "The American Leviathan" is to accord it a permanent place on our library shelf and refer to it as frequently as possible, or if one desires a full course in up-to-date political economy, to read it from cover to cover. But this last not in one week or even one month, for it must be digested to bring mental nourishment. Time has rendered other books on the government of the United States of America if not obsolete at least not at all up-to-date. It leaves this book by the Beards in an undisputed field.

In the past we have found Mr. Charles Beard reliable and informative. This book is no less so. The greatest interest of the book is in those places where the authors have made it the "last word." It is here that one is most intrigued to observe the authors' interpretation of recent events. Sometimes they are cited to indicate a trend, sometimes only to illustrate a point.

The first novelty about the book to strike me was the illustrations. One doesn't often see in a book on government the picture of a man testing an airship girder, or the machine which automatically predicts tides in all parts of the world. I naturally supposed that the book didn't deal with political economy in just the way of previous books by Beard or by James Bryce.

Here is the explanation, in the authors' own words: "Hence it follows that a searching treatise on American government must reckon with the technological revolution wrought by science and machinery since the federal Constitution was drawn up more than a century ago. For the old congeries of provincial societies, founded principally on agriculture and local commerce, which made up the United States in 1787, machine industry and the various forms of rapid communication have substituted a Great Society, based on national and international markets. Railways, telegraph lines, airplanes, and the radio override historic political boundaries, weld this country into a single economic organism, and steadily weave it into the web of world civilization."

has thrust itself into all the institutions and practices of government. It has emphasized as never before the role of government.

"Under the pressure of these new forces, government itself has become an economic and technical business on a large scale."

Some of our ideas on the government of the United States were surprised to find, already in our own life-time, or even a small part of it must needs be revamped. Emphasis must be placed differently. Most important of all we must learn a new tolerance for the affairs of government have become more and more complicated and simple formulas no longer work. Instead of our system of government being fixed and decided by precedent there are no precedents and no rules for many relationships contacts between the peoples of the United States and we must return to the humble, receptive attitude of the student.

My personal feeling is that "The American Leviathan" is the most important book with which I have made contact in the last six months.

Portrait by Caroline by Sylvia Thompson, Book League of America selection.

Most of us are charmed with stories of English life, particularly as it is carried on among gentler families who live in country homes. There is a tranquility and a polish and a poise which somehow holds a fascination.

"Portrait by Caroline" is about people who live just so charmingly. Friendship and discussion and thinking, and love in the lives of these people, are important. Possibly it is the ideal manner of living which contrasted with reality as we know it, only appears charming.

The story is about a triangle. Maurice Vernon, his wife Caroline and Peter Stanley are the three corners of the triangle. Peter and Caroline fall in love. Instead of running away and leaving Maurice and the little daughter Ann, they decide to be more sporting than that and stick the situation out, continue associating together and living close together and all three Metropolitan Opera company last season, recently completed the score for his second grand opera, "Peter Ibbetson," for which he also wrote the libretto.

This new three-act work is based on a French novel by Du Maurier, its scenes laid in London and Paris during the middle of the nineteenth century. It contains more arias than "The King's Henchman," also considerable chorus work and calls for two orchestras.

"Peter Ibbetson" is listed for its world premiere by the Metropolitan Opera company in New York early in February, with Edward Johnson in the title role. Lucrezia Bori and Lawrence Tibbett will also fill important roles in the performance.

Johnson previously sang the leading role in Taylor's "King's Henchman." Pizzetti's "Fra Gerardo" and Rimsky-Korsakoff's "Sadko," when premiered at the Metropolitan. He recently appeared in recital in Los Angeles, and is now in New York, engaged in rehearsals for his ninth consecutive season with the Metropolitan Opera company.

being friendly, just as they had been before the love element entered in, in reading of triangles in books one has often wondered what would have happened if the characters had not succumbed to their passion, but had fought against it to the extent of not causing an earthquake. It is conceivably easy to be friendly and not lovers and the grand passion, or the petite passion, would be worn down without any of the startling climaxes which make the thrills of the books.

In "Portrait by Caroline" we at least see the other side taken. The people involved in the triangle decide to go on.

A bit from Mr. R. M. Gay's review of the book in the February Atlantic Monthly is worth reprinting. He says: In describing Caroline the author is in somewhat of the quandary of the college boy who complained that he was trying to describe chaos and could think of nothing to say about it except that it was chaotic. If Caroline is puzzling to the reader, that is because she is to herself.

Mary Baker Eddy by Lyman P. Powell, published by the MacMillan Company.

Dr. Lyman P. Powell, author and lecturer, in preparing this biography of Mary Baker Eddy has studied material which has never before been available. All of the source material assembled by the authorities of the Christian Science church, including the 8000 documents and letters left by Mrs. Eddy, were opened to him for research freely, to the extent necessary in the execution of his task.

Dr. Powell himself is not a member of the Christian Science church. He graduated from the Philadelphia Theological seminary into the Episcopal ministry in 1897. As vice president of the Association of American colleges in war time, Dr. Powell studied overseas as well as at home the effect of the war on education. He started the educational reciprocity movement with Europe and headed the committee which in 1918 launched the idea of a secretary of education with a seat in the president's cabinet. Dr. Powell's special background for the preparation of this book in twenty-five years of study and of writing about various phases of mental healing, plus an even greater amount of research into the life and character of the discoverer and founder of Christian Science, as well as close observation of the results of her teachings.

The manner of living of the followers of Mary Baker Eddy has been an inspiration to others to become followers. However people might argue the tenets of the Christian Science faith, it is always conceded, unless their experience has been very rare indeed, that somewhere these people who were following Mrs. Eddy were finding a well of inspiration which made them fine exponents of the faith, lovely friends, and joyous associates. They have discovered an art of living which is distinctive. It was some such idea as this which led D. Powell's interest in Christian Science which in the prologue he tells us covered a long period of time.

Although the book, as it appears in the book shop, may seem formidable in this busy day and age a brief investigation shows that it is not so at all for almost a hundred pages are devoted to notes and acknowledgments which will not prove of particular interest to the average reader. The book is printed in a large type on a generously spaced page which is inviting.

John Riddel in a recent number of Vanity Fair, listing his New Year's resolutions said that one was: not to read any more biographies of Mary Baker Eddy. The quotation may discourage some from reading this particular one, but it should not because it means that Mr. Riddel, the reviewer, has already read several biographies of Mrs. Eddy. A character who is now and is bound to be increasingly important is one whose life and environment must be known by those who claim to be informed.

Any biography of so striking a character as Mrs. Eddy would always be subject to close analysis by admirers and opponents. This book has been subjected to just such cross currents. It certainly is written in a far from critical vein, in fact in a manner altogether pleasing to her followers.

N by E. by Rockwell Kent.

A delightful experience awaits those who have before them the reading of this book. Some people enjoy most reading and hearing about hot countries. To my notion cold countries are more enticing, more invigorating; their charms are less difficult to imagine.

On one score only is the book baffling. I cannot understand why anyone would prefer to pleasure voyage across barren seas, tracked with ice bergs, without an experienced sailor, or even one schooled in the handling of the tools of the mariner's art. In event that one enjoyed the thrill of the danger, and the tang salt water enough to put up with cold and the damp, and the sea wash in the food, and the meals precipitated on the floor, to add to the travails of the cook; there is the difficulty of being in a thirty-three foot boat with two others. The best companions in the world become trying in cramped quarters. All their little disagreeable mannerisms become magnified. The slothful become most trying of all. That such a journey can be disagreeable on this score was not discredited by Mr. Kent for one of his companions was anathema to him. The nickname of the companion was "Cupid." The skipper had urged him home to New York from Paris to make the trip in the ship, the "Direction." Storms and shoals and icebergs were safely passed and the little ship was at anchor in a peaceful fjord. Mr. Kent in his diary said, "Tomorrow I will paint." But when the morning dawned the little ship was wrecked by a terrible wind which descended upon the formerly quiet haven, from the mountain tops inland. Some things were ascertained. The "Direction" was thrown up on the beach where it was somewhat out of the water at low tide. A

Next in the narrative comes Mr. Kent's own journey from their temporary camp to a settlement. He starts with provisions for a week, and bedding and all that is necessary and he can carry on his back. According to the map, presuming that they have been wrecked at such and such a place, it is about thirty miles to the nearest permanent settlement, Godthaab. But there are many difficulties. But must of course follow the shoreline. Otherwise he would lose his bearings completely. There are indentures of the sea which must be circumnavigated and a swollen stream which must be followed long distances along one bank before he can find a reasonably safe place to cross. And in at least one case he finds that the river is an overflow from a lake and the lake must be circumnavigated and that lake opens into another and the second lake must be circumnavigated before he can reach the other shore, with his pack.

The illustrations of the book are strange and beautiful. They illustrate the story in so fitting a manner that it is positively thrilling. Everyone will not enjoy the book. Some there may be who will find it tedious but in contrast there will be others who will treasure it.

NEWS FROM THE AUTOMOBILE WORLD

SIX BUICK CARS DELIVERED HERE IN PAST WEEK

Retail deliveries of Buick motor cars throughout the United States during the last 10 days of December substantially surpassed the amount which had been previously forecast by the company, and total deliveries for the month of December for the first time in several years were greater than during the preceding month of November.

This information was made public after the company had studied sales reports submitted. That the sales of Buicks throughout the nation is reflected here is seen in the report of William R. Gordon, salesmanager for the Reed Motor Car company, local Buick dealers, that six Buicks were delivered to Orange county residents during the past week.

New cars were delivered to Ned A. Wakeham, of Garden Grove, G. W. Rockefeller and the sheriff's office in Santa Ana; Rene Quintacker, of Seal Beach, Dr. Dexter Ball, Santa Ana, and D. Mulherren of San Clemente.

PENN-VIS USED BY CITY TAXI IN SANTA ANA

After a thorough test the City Taxicabs have proven conclusively that Penn-Vis oil stands up under the hard strain of the gruelling service better than any oil they have used according to T. S. Hunter, of the Hunter Oil company.

Penn-Vis is super refined from 100 per cent Pennsylvania crude and other paraffin base crudes, blended with pure vegetable castor oil. It is claimed that the castor oil makes its lubricating qualities superior to any other type of oil.

Mr. Hunter says that Penn-Vis is growing in popularity daily and that many of the race and endurance drivers are using it due to its high viscosity and ability to withstand high temperatures.

ROAD SIGNS GO MODERN

The coming of the airplane has brought about a change in road signs near the Grand Central Air Terminal at Glendale, Calif. The sign Ellen Hopkins is showing here is displayed on a road which runs parallel to the airport, and over which planes fly very low to land. It is said the sign eliminates the chance of a motorist becoming startled, at the sight of a plane zooming overhead unexpectedly, and losing control of his car.

"CATERPILLAR" SCHOOL ENDS SESSION HERE

What is declared to be one of the most successful schools of the kind ever staged in the west has just completed a two-day term in Santa Ana. The school, sponsored by the Caterpillar Tractor company, held its sessions at the Santa Ana plant of Shepherd Tractor & Equipment company, local distributors of "Caterpillar" tractors.

The attendance at the "Caterpillar" school was unusually good. Frank Lucas, manager of Shepherd Tractor & Equipment company's Santa Ana establishment, reports 225 users of power machinery enrolled for the course and attending the meetings.

One of the most notable features of the "Caterpillar" school this year was the introduction of talking motion pictures illustrating the use of "Caterpillar" tractors under various conditions. This is the first year that talking pictures have been used in connection with the "Caterpillar" school. In addition to the talks there were lectures, demonstrations and explanations given by experts from the "Caterpillar" factory, including the following: J. F. Goss and R. R. Wilson.

FLYING MARINE TALKS SUNDAY FOR CHEVROLET

Using his airplane as an ambulance, and flying to safety and medical aid, 18 Marines wounded in Nicaragua, won the Congressional Medal of Honor for Lieut. C. Frank Schlitt, hero in this week's "Chevrolet Chronicles" program scheduled for KJH on Sunday, January 25 at 9 p. m.

Three lives saved and relief brought to others in desperate need, the official citation says, resulted from Lieut. Schlitt's "extraordinary heroism distinguished by conspicuous gallantry and intrepidity at the risk of his life." In January, 1928, during the Nicaraguan trouble in the town of Quilali, Marines succeeded in taking this town, which lies like a cup in the hills, but at a sacrifice of a number of killed and wounded.

Absence of roads or transportation equipment meant further fatalities unless the wounded could be removed to a relief base 80 miles distant. Although no level expanse offered a landing field, planes zooming over the town dropped picks and shovels with which the occupational Marines widened the 15 foot trail in the center of the town into a rocky, uneven field.

Lieut. Schlitt dipped into this mountain hole and literally dropped his plane on the rocky floor, so that it bounced thirty feet, observers said, and finally came to rest at the end of the bluff-bordered runway.

"Lieut. Schlitt bravely undertook this dangerous and vital task," says the citation, "read when President Coolidge personally pinned the Congressional Medal of Honor on Lieut. Schlitt's lapel at ceremonies at the White House, and by taking off a total of ten times in the rough, rolling street of the partially burned village, under hostile machine gun fire on each occasion, succeeded by almost superhuman skill combined with personal courage of the highest order in accomplishing his mission, thereby actually saving three lives and bringing supplies and succor to others in desperate need."

There were 1655 such deaths during the first nine months of 1930, or six persons a day killed by automobiles in California. The pedestrian continued as the major cause of the death toll. There were 543 pedestrian deaths recorded, compared with 446 deaths in which motor vehicles alone were involved.

There were 345 deaths which involved non-collision accidents, such as overturning, running off the road, skidding over embankments, and similar accidents in which excessive speed may have been a factor.

The number of deaths which involved street cars and automobiles showed considerable increase during 1930. There were 40 such deaths in 1929, compared with 63 last year.

"There is evidence that the safety campaigns which have been conducted so vigorously in California are bearing fruit, as there has been a considerable reduction in number of deaths of children under 15 years of age in automobile accidents," the report said.

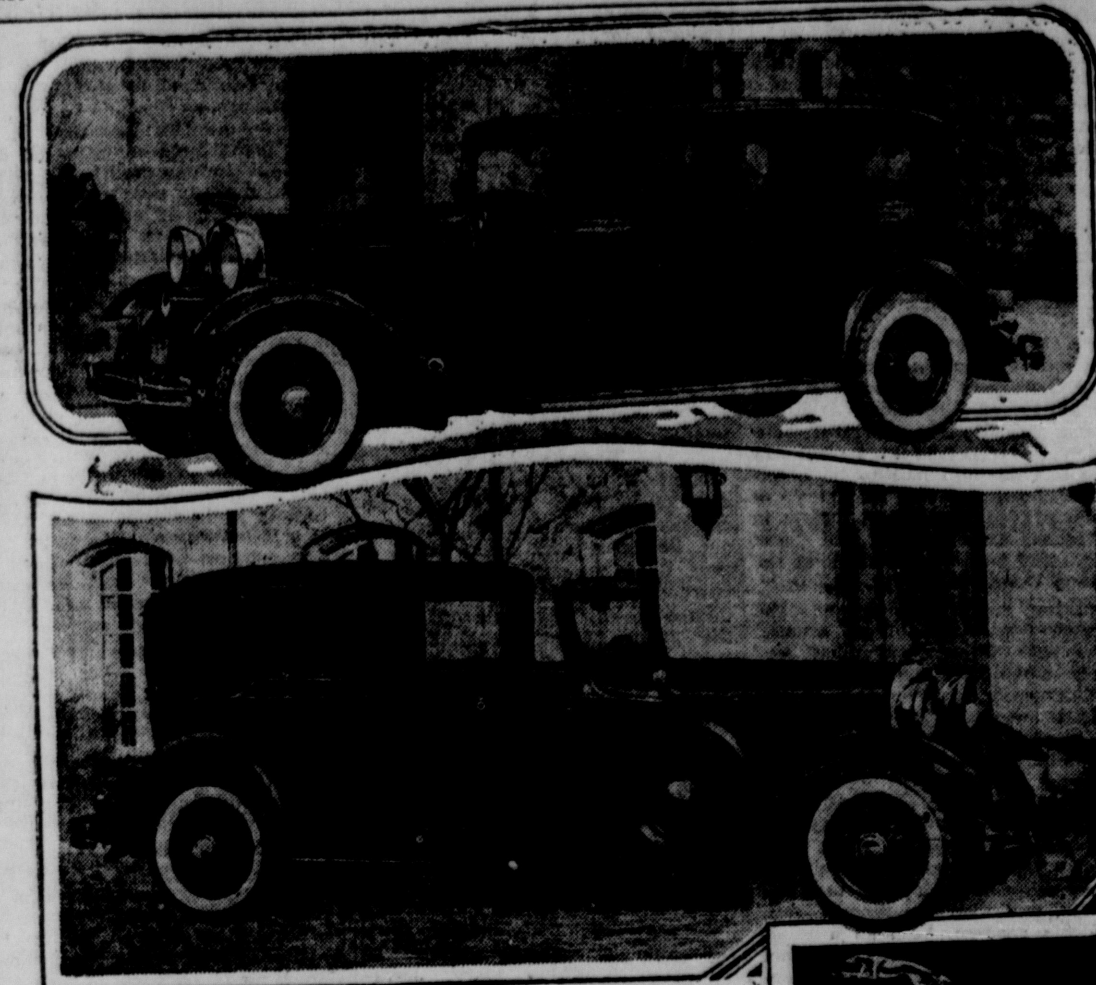

There were 300 such deaths of children under 15 years of age from this cause in the first nine months of 1929, while there were but 170 such deaths during the first nine months of 1930.

The horse-drawn vehicle and automobiles have about ended their ancient feud, according to the report. In 1929 there were but two deaths which came as a result of collision between the old order and the modern mode of transportation.

One of the largest mechanical units of its kind has been built in Westphalia, Germany. It is a turning lathe about 32 feet long, and its heavy work requires 100 horsepower for the running.

NEW LINCOLNS BOAST NOVEL FEATURES

3,500,000 CARS PRODUCED IN 1930 SHOWS BIGGEST SLUMP IN AUTO INDUSTRY SINCE 1922

BY ELMER C. WALZER
(United Press Financial Editor)

NEW YORK, Jan. 24.—(UP)—Automobile production in the United States and Canada during the year 1930 totaled 3,505,001 cars and trucks, the smallest output in the industry since 1922 when production was 2,646,229 units. The record was set in 1929 at 5,621,816 cars and trucks.

As a result of this tremendous decline in output, stocks of automobile companies dropped sharply. The shares of the 20 leading companies lost 69 per cent in market value from their highs of 1929 to the close of 1930.

Values Shrink
At the 1929 highs the group had market valuation of $6,552,150,000. At the lows of 1930, made near the middle of December, this figure had shrunk to $1,782,455,000, or a drop from the high of $4,769,725,000. A rise late in the year brought the value back $251,450,000 to $2,033,875,000.

Based on number of shares outstanding the motor group had an average price of $77.75 a share at the highs. At the close of 1929 this had been whittled down to $32.75 a share. At the high of 1930 it was back to $42.75 from which it dropped more than 50 per cent to $21.25. At the end of 1930 the average was back to $24.13.

General Motors Corporation, with its 43,500,000 shares of stock outstanding, sustained the most severe loss. It fell from a market value of $2,990,000,000 at the 1929 high of $91.75 a share, to $1,370,200,000 at the low of 1930 when the stock sold at $31.50 a share.

Widest Decline
Aurum automobile sustained the widest decline in value per share. At its 1929 high it was selling at $514 per share. This was hammered down to $60.38 a share at the low of 1930. The stock closed 1930 at $106.35. Auburn has only about 190,000 shares of stock outstanding, hence the market value was only $97,500,000 at the high. This dropped to $11,470,000 and rallied to close 1930 at $20,450,000.

Jordan was practically eliminated. It sold at $16.50 a share at the 1929 high and then dropped to 26 cents a share in 1930. Marmon fell from its high of $104 a share to $4.25 and rallied to close 1930 at $5.50. Chrysler which reached $135 a share at its high fell to $14.13. Gardner fell from $25 to $1; Graham-Paige from $54 to $3; Nash from $118.38 to $21.25; Reo from $31.88 to $7.75; Willys-Overland from $55 to $3.75 and Yellow Truck from $51.25 to $8.50.

The list of automobile stocks taken aggregated $4,300,000 shares or 74 per cent of all the stocks listed on the New York stock exchange.

stated Mr. Orval Lyon, Fisk tire merchant.

Air-Flight Principle tires are built to conform to the lines and design of modern automobiles. They have also been constructed with the thought in mind of high speed driving. Special precaution is used to eliminate danger of blow-outs and Fisk engineers have after careful study and test designed a tread that results in quick, efficient stopping with minimum danger of skidding even on slippery roads. And building all of these features into their tires they have not sacrificed riding comfort but rather have increased ease of riding by increasing the size of the air chamber and lengthening the flex area in the side walls, thereby allowing the motorist to ride more on the air and less on the rubber.

With the constant yearly change in automobile design and with the rapid developments of speed, comfort and safety in this field, it is essential that tire builders keep pace with the ever changing conditions. "Fisk Air-Flight Principle tires have been designed by the manufacturers to keep pace with these changing conditions,"

NEW LINCOLNS BEING SHOWN IN SANTA ANA

The initial showing of the new Lincoln automobiles in Santa Ana is now being held at the show rooms of the George Dunton agency on East Fourth street, local Lincoln dealer, and according to Dunton, the show rooms will be open evenings for the benefit of the public.

The new Lincoln was acclaimed by thousands who witnessed its first display at the Automobile Salon in New York City.

One of its outstanding features is its new free wheeling transmission. Mounted on a 145-inch wheelbase chassis, the new bodies are graceful and fleet of line. The cars hug the road closely and have amazing roadability. The 120 horse power motor is 33 per cent more powerful than in any previous Lincoln.

The new Lincoln group includes both custom and standard body types. In the standard line are eight types, including a seven passenger touring car, four passenger phaeton, five passenger coupe, five passenger sedan, town sedans of the two and three window types, seven passenger sedan and seven passenger limousine.

The custom group includes several other models.

SHOW PACKARD MODELS TODAY AND SUNDAY

The special display of De Luxe Packard models that started today and continuing through Sunday at the Packard show rooms 1201 N. Main street, will be found very interesting, according to Elvin E. Webb local Packard dealer.

This past year the Packard Motor Car Co. have enlarged its body plant to the extent that it now builds all their own De Luxe bodies. Every detail of the Packard car has been highly finished and to say that these cars are luxurious transportation is merely a repetition of what the motor car critics at the recent New York Auto show acclaimed the Packard De Luxe cars.

23rd Anniversary Of Woman's Club Observed Jan. 27

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Jan. 24.—The 23rd anniversary of the Woman's club will be celebrated next Tuesday at the clubhouse. A covered dish luncheon will be served at 12:30 o'clock and every member is asked to bring a dish of food. Past presidents, charter members and honorary members of the club will be honor guests and the event is also to be home coming day for out of town members and former members.

Mrs. Amanda Severson will bake the birthday cake and the clubhouse will be appropriately decorated. Mrs. W. H. Jones is chairman of the committee on decorations and Mrs. A. L. Seiglehorst is chairman of the hostess committee. An interesting program has been arranged. Miss Gladys Conrad will present some of her dance class pupils in a short program of dances. Mrs. W. D. Pemberton, of Anaheim, will give a vocal number and Mrs. Roy K. Smith will contribute a reading.

Laguna Highway
Closed 2 Weeks

LAGUNA BEACH, Jan. 24.—Improvements on the Canyon road will keep that thoroughfare closed for two weeks while "hot stuff" is being poured, according to a report brought to this city from the foreman in charge of construction.

Work on the road from the end of the concrete near the lakes to a point near the junction of the new cutoff has cut down curves and added a little to the width of the road. A new surface is being placed on it. This will make virtually a new road from the city limits to State Highway No. 101.

LOCKS ON NEW STUDEBAKERS THIEF PROOF

Automobile thieves favor certain makes of cars because they are easy to steal. Other makes again are eschewed for the opposite reason. Proof that Studebaker cars head the latter group is provided by the new fire and theft insurance rates just published which show that the premium paid on a Studebaker car is considerably less than on Harry Riley, Studebaker dealer here.

"Studebaker's favored position is the result of its early adoption of the coincidental lock to steering and ignition, which has been employed since 1924. Theft insurance charges, as well as all other insurance charges, are based on the actual experience of insurance companies of the degree of risk involved with any special product in any specific locality.

"Studebaker's success with the coincidental lock year after year has resulted in making its cars an increasingly favorable theft risk. The protection against theft offered by the coincidental lock is revealed in a comparison of premiums paid on Studebaker cars and competitive cars in representative sections of the country.

"In New York City, for example, Studebaker owners pay from $3.75 to $17.25 less for fire and theft insurance than owners of competitive cars, on a basic valuation of $1500. In Chicago, the saving ranges from $3.00 to $15.75 on the same valuation. Between fire and theft insurance, the latter is more costly.

Offer of Shoe Firm Refused By Anaheim Chamber

ANAHEIM, Jan. 24.—An offer of a shoe manufacturing concern to locate here was definitely refused at the regular meeting of the chamber of commerce Thursday in the Elks club. Refusal of the offer was made because the concern wanted more money than the chamber could pay.

According to George W. Reed, secretary of the chamber, the chamber was ready to offer a choice site for the proposed factory but was unable to raise as much money as was needed to swing the deal.

Budget System To Be Taken Up When Council Convenes

SAN CLEMENTE, Jan. 24.—The adoption of a budget system by the city of San Clemente and collection of taxes by the city will be taken up at the "Journed" session of the council to be held in the Ed Bartlett building next Wednesday. 8-HOUR SERVANT DAY

FORD SHOW AT 4TH. GARFIELD IS ON TODAY

Residents of Santa Ana and this county will have opportunity to "visit" the great plants of the Ford Motor company through the medium of a sound motion picture to be exhibited in Santa Ana, George Dunton, local Ford dealer, announced today.

The movie is part of a Ford show to be held today, in a large tent at East Fourth and Garfield streets in Santa Ana. The show will be open to the public free of charge from 10 a. m. to 10 p. m.

Those who visit the show will be able to learn not only how Ford cars and trucks are manufactured in quantity production, but to obtain some idea of the vastness of the Ford enterprise, George Dunton pointed out. They will see how coal obtained from Ford-owned mines is transported to the plants at Dearborn, Mich., in Ford-owned railroad cars; how iron ore from Ford mines and lumber from Ford forests are carried in Ford lake ships; and how in the manufacture of the car various by-products are utilized for making fertilizer, charcoal briquets, chemicals and other things.

Besides the motion picture, the show will include a number of special exhibits revealing step by step how various parts of the car are made, a cut-away truck chassis, and a Tudor body cut in half to reveal the details of its construction.

A feature of the show will be a display of the full line of Ford passenger and commercial cars. Arrangements for the show were made by the local dealer in co-operation with Ford dealers in nearby towns and the Long Beach branch of the Ford Motor company.

The largest collection of American theatrical photographs is said to be owned by Albert Davis, of Brooklyn, N. Y.

STUDEBAKER

—pioneer and pacemaker

IN FREE WHEELING, the greatest advancement since the electric starter, the pioneering spirit of Studebaker reaches the high point of 79 years of pacemaking tradition.

Free Wheeling with positive gear control harnesses momentum—saves gasoline and oil, saves chassis strain, and makes driving a continuous, delightful thrill. The two finest cars in America—Pierce-Arrow and Lincoln—have followed Studebaker's lead and adopted Free Wheeling. All cars must eventually offer it.

But Free Wheeling is only one of a long list of today's fine car essentials which Studebaker pioneered.

Studebaker introduced the full-power muffler, greatly reducing engine back-pressure and thus increasing effective horsepower.

Studebaker was first to provide ball-bearing spring shackles, which can never squeak nor rattle but which permit unhampered spring and shock-absorber action. Sealed in lubricant, they need no attention whatever for 20,000 miles at a time.

Studebaker was first to eliminate 90 per cent of motor roar with a carburetor silencer. Formerly motor roar was thought to emanate from the exhaust. Studebaker engineers isolated it as carburetion noise—and hushed it.

Studebaker brought out a Light Six when others in its field were featuring Fours—a Straight Eight when other large makers were committed to Sixes.

Studebaker pioneered the following advancements when 82% to 100% of other makers did not offer them—Timken bearings, the Lanchester vibration damper, steering-ignition lock, hydrostatic gas gauge, balloon tires, oil filter, engine heat indicator on dash, chromium plating, positive fuel pump, one-piece steel core steering wheel.

Thus has Studebaker, pioneer and pacemaker, merited the outstanding leadership it holds today.

Studebaker cars are priced f. o. b. factory from $795 to $2000

Poor Clowny sure was frightened now. He shouted loudly. "Tell me how that pesky duck jumped to the street. It's my fault. I'll just bet. But I am feeling right in trim and I can run till I catch him. Say! If you Tinsies want to see a thrilling chase, get set."

The duck went quacking down the street. "Was fun to watch his little feet fly in the air, then down again. He seemed to fly and hop. Wee Clowny didn't hesitate, but started off at quite a gallop. He waved his hands quite frantically and loudly shouted, "Stop!"

"Don't yell at him," another cried. "Just wait till you're up by his side and then reach out and grab him. Gee, you're scaring him to death. You'd better use your speed right now, or he will get away somehow. It won't be long until you'll run yourself right out of breath."

The duck boy seemed a wee bit sad. The Travel Man said, "Cheer up, lad. If Clowny doesn't catch

EVENING SALUTATION

Put your trust in the Lord.
—PSALM 4:5.SHOULD BLANK BALLOTS BE A
GAUGE OF PUBLIC SENTIMENT?

It is well known that the voters of Massachusetts repealed the State Enforcement act of the Eighteenth amendment at the election last November. It was one of the most bitterly fought contests which the state has seen for many years. An unusual off-year vote was cast. Yet out of the 1,225,000 votes cast, 232,000 voters did not express themselves at all on this question. This, over against 73,000 blanks for governor and 82,000 for United States senator. Had all the 232,000 voters favored the retention of the enforcement act, it would not have quite saved it from repeal. But the significant fact is that so many people who go to the trouble of voting have no interest in expressing their opinion on the most important question on the ballot.

It is a matter that might well be taken into consideration, therefore, whether a simple plurality, or even a majority of votes, should be sufficient to enact or repeal a measure so vital and important as one which affects a state's loyalty to the Constitution of the United States. In some Southern states a man running for office must receive an actual majority of all the votes cast to secure the nomination. In other states, 55 per cent to 60 per cent of the voters must approve a change in the Constitution which has been submitted to them. Very little regard should usually be paid to the indifferent voter. But sometimes the question is put in such a way that the voter is stumped by it. He would like to vote, but neither proposition quite appeals to him. We have ourselves refrained from voting many times on a certain measure or for a certain office because the measure was framed in such a way that we could not express our views, or because all the candidates for the given office were about equally undesirable.

We believe most heartily in the rule of the majority, but sometimes the majority is not given a fair chance to express itself. It is this fact that makes us believe that we have not yet quite gotten a fair expression on the repeal measures which have gone through in some of the states. There may be those who are heartily in favor of the Eighteenth Amendment, but who are not quite sure of the wisdom of every detail of the Volstead Act. How to arrive at the real sentiment of the people on some of the most important measures presented to them is still an undecided question in view of the great number of blank ballots cast at an election, and the great number who do not even go to the polls at all.

THE WORLD ALMANAC

The World Almanac, that storehouse of facts and statistics which every well-informed man has on his book shelf, is out for 1931. We know of nothing which gives so much for 50 cents as this volume. Do you want to know what the government spends, and what for? Do you want to know what was the vote cast for every governor in every state, every senator elected, every representative to Congress? Here you may find it. Do you want to find out how many immigrants arrived last year? How many colleges there are and what their student enrollment, their endowments, and their expenditures are? Here it is. Would you like to know what the government of every country is, who are their rulers, what are their foreign possessions, how great their population and their geographical size are, the size of their standing armies? Here you have it. And so on, and so on.

We are not advertising this volume. We are simply doing our readers a valued favor by suggesting the biggest 50 cents' worth we know anything about. How often we wonder about some of the facts and statistics this volume contains. Sometimes we would give a dollar to know something which by turning to the index we could find in a minute in this book. It is all there. We can hardly wait till the middle of January to get all the facts for 1930. Now we can know some of the things which we have been wanting to know.

OUR BIGGEST BANKS

The American Banker lists the 100 largest banks in the United States, and the list shows the tremendous assets of our banks. Here is the Chase National Bank, the largest bank in the country, measured by deposits, with a capitalization of $148,000,000 and deposits on December 31, 1930, of $2,073,775,923. Such figures almost stagger the imagination. The Bank of America in San Francisco stands fourth in the list, with a capitalization of $50,000,000 and deposits of $998,039,477.

A study of the figures of these 100 banks shows that the bulk of the business in the financial world is done by a comparatively few banks. Take out the first five on the list, and the other 95 would not aggregate the total of the largest five. Wealth is concentrated in a few institutions and in a few cities of the country. Six of the eight largest banks are in New York. Their aggregate deposits are over five and a half billions of dollars, about one-fourth of all the bank deposits in the whole country.

Now that the Federal Reserve bank controls the credit of the country, the menace of private credit control is no longer a danger. But before the passage of the Federal Reserve Act, these few banks, or the men who controlled them, could easily dictate the course of events in the country.

A READING PARTY

Dr. Julian S. Huxley who was lecturing out here on the coast a few weeks ago, in an article in the February Atlantic, refers to having been in a "reading party." Here are his words: I was spending some of the spring vacation with a reading party on the coast of North Wales.

A "reading party" sounds a challenge to the imagination. Possibly it means something very definite; one of those traditions in English university life four hundred years or more old which some of us over here haven't yet heard of.

For the most part reading has always seemed one of those things best done quite by oneself. When one is deep in a book, a discussion of some intricate problem which one has just begun to understand, or is at the emotional climax of a romance, or the denouement of a mystery story is there anything more aggravating than the person who is sitting by you, and also reading and who says: Oh, just listen to this? It does seem sometimes that a well-bred person would notice that you are within thirty or forty pages of the end of a book and not to be disturbed. Of course, it is really a good discipline for one's poise.

On the other hand, if a "reading party" would inspire anyone to read we vote for it. But would it be a party, if it were aimed to "do good to" some people by inspiring them to read? A party is a party. And who wants to spoil it?

There are books, however, which one longs to have read with someone. They are the books which make one think. One has a desire to put the thought he has gotten from the author into his own words in order to make clear whether or not he has understood what the author has said. Such a book is not necessarily a poor one. If one doesn't understand it easily it may be that it is not clear, but it may also be that one is faced with an opportunity for mental growth.

John Dewey's writings would bear up well in a "reading party" which, according to our idea, would be much like a round table. A "reading party" might be great fun but it would all depend upon the personnel of the guest list. They would have to be persons with literary backgrounds and persons who were not slothful; who would have done enough preliminary work to know what was being talked or read about, who would have some basis for interpreting or elucidating what was being read.

On the whole, we believe we would prefer being invited to a "reading party" than giving one. One way there would be a joyous honor, the other a fearful responsibility.

A Matter of Choice

Imperial Valley Press
Mary McCormick, Chicago opera singer, breaks forth in a newspaper interview with a long tirade stressing the superiority of the European male over the Yankee of the same species.

Miss McCormick, who plans to take on as her mate the Georgian prince, Serge Medviani, as soon as the courts can cut him loose from Pola Negri, would rather marry 50 Europeans than one American, because the former have more romance in their little toes than the latter have in their whole carcasses.

It takes all kinds to make a world, and if Mary prefers the European brand, we Americans eligible for the marriage market, will have to struggle along without her, and millions of her sisters in Uncle Sam's backyard will probably go through life realizing what a terrible mistake they made, with a plain John Jones for a husband instead of a Graustarkian prince.

Predicting evil things is a nasty job but every so often it becomes necessary to predict in this vein. Wait until Mary gets tired of paying the prince's bills and finds him paying to other women attentions that she feels he should pay only to her. Then, perhaps she may realize that though John Jones may not know any oyster fork from a golf niblick, and could no more kiss a lady's hand than he could vault over the moon, he is a pretty recent sort of bird and handy to have around the first of the month when the bills come trooping in.

John Jones is not perfect and neither is the European gentleman.

This Is Sad Story of Liver Pills and Opera

San Francisco Chronicle
When the mind of an Englishman abroad wends its way back to the Old Country in a reminiscent mood he thinks first of roast beef and then of Pears' Soap and Beecham's Pills. Without a doubt, these are the three great national institutions of the tight little Isle. Roast beef keeps the Briton strong, Pears' Soap keeps him clean and Beecham's Pills keep him well.

And so, recognizing the great part that Beecham's Pills have had in the upbuilding of the vast British Empire, it is interesting to read in the news dispatches that Sir Thomas Beecham is bankrupt. Once one of the richest men in England because of the big demand for his pills, now he is just plain "broke," as we would say over here. Not that the Englishman isn't using just as many of Sir Thomas' pills as before. There is quite another reason and a more esthetic one. Sir Thomas, you see, has a hobby, and his hobby has eaten him up, just as a similar hobby has ruined a lot of other rich men. Sir Thomas is a musician and an orchestra leader of repute. For twenty years he has struggled to establish a permanent opera in England and has poured millions of dollars into his efforts. The money has gone and England hasn't any permanent opera. Sir Thomas, as aforesaid, is "busted." The opera has eaten up Beecham's Pills and cried for more and there just "ain't" any more.

A Big Club

Oakland Tribune
An organization which should serve well in its purpose to stir memories and add to good fellowship is "The Guild of Former Pipe Organ Pumpers." Membership is limited to those who, when boys, used to get behind the church organ and pump while an artist in view of the congregation was given credit for the resulting sounds. A gentleman who has assembled his statistics by putting the question to casual groups asserts that, if his fellows are to be believed, two out of three pump organists at some period in their lives. The club takes place with that other whose members studied the McGuffey readers as one distinguished for having no serious purpose, no constitution and no by-laws.

More Truth Than Poetry

NOT SO FOOLISH

(The French people have been criticized for not selling their securities at prevailing prices.)

In the cable despatches I read
That the French don't behave as they ought;
They seem very reluctant indeed
To get rid of the bonds they have bought.
The market, I'm told, would be stronger in tone
And trading would not be so quiet,
If they'd only dispose of the stuff that they own
For less than it cost them to buy it.

Of course, I can well understand
That business would not be so bad
If the hard-working folk of the land
Would sell all the bonds that they had.
And if they should offer to sell them today
At the shrunken and prevalent prices,
The nation, so experts in finances say,
Would stand in no fear of a crisis.

But I know of few people on earth
Who would sell anything they possess
For less than the same may be worth
In a couple of years, more or less.
If a farmer can't get half as much for a cow,
Which the butcher perhaps may desire,
By going to market and selling her now,
He will wait till the prices are higher.

As for me, if a few stocks I had,
Which I bought quite a while ago, cheap,
And business should chance to be bad
Those stocks I would certainly keep.
The French may be playing a pretty tight game,
But their thrift is a national custom;
They may be as close as the stock brokers claim,
But staying that way will not bust 'em.

EXPLAINING THE CUSTOM

Riches have wings, and in a flying age like this they might well have been expected to use them.

NO TAKERS

We heard of a stock broker the other day who was vainly trying to trade a seat on the Stock Exchange for a seat on a magistrate's bench.

A Pessimist of the Pessimists

By WILLIAM TRUFANT FOSTER and WADDILL CATCHINGS

"I am a pessimist of the pessimists," says the Reverend John Haynes Holmes. "Before the winter is over, we shall have experienced the deepest and blackest period of calamity and depression in the memory of living man."

We should not take these dark words too darkly. They come from a provincial town on the Hudson River, New York City by name. This town is always either drunk with joy, or sunk in gloom. It never, by any chance, represents the rest of the country.

The rest of the country, having a wider perspective, is encouraged by these facts:

The volume of production is larger by far, and the standard of living is higher by far, than in any previous depression.

This is the first depression in which there has been full recognition of the responsibility of society for the willing worker who can find no work to do.

This is the first depression in which employers, as a body, have insisted that wage-rates must be maintained.

Never before has so much money been appropriated, by any nation, for the express purpose of creating jobs.

The savings deposits and the insurance protection of wage-earners are larger than they were even in the prosperous years from 1923 to 1927.

The efforts of the nations to make progress, through concerted action, are more enlightened than ever before. These efforts are based on more effective recognition than ever before of the economic solidarity of the world.

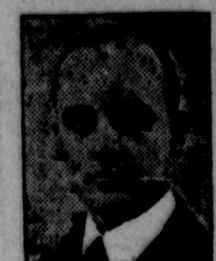

Although this depression, like all others, has given rise to political unrest and rumors of war, now for the first time peace has the powerful support and the solemn compact of all nations.

No man can look these facts full in the face and remain a pessimist of the pessimists. This period of depression, to be sure, is deep enough and black enough to shock the "do-nothing" economists and politicians and bankers out of their complacency. But all other major depressions have been deeper and blacker.

Thoughts On Modern Life

TAXES AND PUBLIC WORKS

At this season state legislatures and the national congress are facing throughout the nation three problems that are intimately related to the problem of spreading our national buying power surplus more widely which I discussed yesterday and the day before.

These three problems are, viz:

First, the lowering of income taxes.

Second, the increasing of public works.

Third, the retrenchment of governmental activities.

I have before me recommendations from political leaders of many of our states looking towards both tax reduction and large programs of public construction.

It is questionable whether such recommendations are not the output of men trying to drive three horses going in diverse directions.

We have for some time gone on the assumption that the nation could best foster industrial development by keeping certain taxes as low as possible in order that industries might have greater funds free for capital investment.

We are now, however, at a significant point in our industrial development at which industry's most crying need is not for more capital but for more customers.

There is plenty of money in the country.

There is ample credit for any and every sound development.

There is no justification for wasting money upon unworthy governmental activities.

We do not want to build a single road or a single public building for which there is not legitimate need.

But the plain fact is that it is to the interest of every citizen of industry and of every worker in every American enterprise to see a well-planned expansion rather than a frightened curtailment of governmental services.

It is of the utmost importance to our economic future that a far-seeing and grand-scale program of public works be got promptly under way in all our states and by the national government.

For all this means greater activity, greater employment, greater spread of buying power.

And, in the long run, the tonic all this will give to business and industrial activity will more than offset any problem of taxation it may

SUSPICION'S REWARD

"Aunt Ella, what is it that mother suspects me of doing every time I'm allowed out of her sight?"

"Why don't you ask her?"

"I did and she flew into a rage and called me names."

"Mary, you ought not to bother your mother. She does not feel well and little things trouble her. Your going out with boys and girls is no little thing to your mother."

"What does she think I'll do? For pity's sake, all I do is walk to the schoolhouse with a boy, maybe three of them. Maybe I walk home again with the same ones. Maybe we do walk slowly and monkey a little. I'm not doing anything wrong. What does mother think I will do?"

"Your mother is afraid that you might make a mistake and find your self in great trouble. It is much easier to get into trouble than it is to get out of it. If your mother knew what would be your fortune it would at least free her of some anxiety. It is the not knowing what may happen to a careless, ignorant girl who insists upon freedom from home and school and conventions that makes mothers turn gray. Can't you understand how full of fear your mother is for you?"

"Sure I can understand how full of fear she is. What gets me is why she is that way. I can take care of myself. The trouble with all you grown-up people is that you imagine that all boys and girls are obsessed with sex. You seem to think that we think of nothing else."

"Well, you can't blame us, can you, when all your spare time seems to be taken up with affairs and—"

"All my spare time. All this freedom. My dear Aunt Ellen, what you grown-up people need is a little of the scientific method of research. How much freedom has an adolescent boy or girl who is working like a dog to get ready for college entrance? The teachers are, every one of them, asking for extra work. Mother insists upon by doing certain chores in the house. I have to leave my room ready for the final sweeping and dusting. I have to clear the breakfast table and stack the dishes, polish my teeth a last brush, polish my nails, give a last touch to my hair, and run for the car."

"I'm in school until after lunch with a short period for lunch. I usually eat that standing up, or chase off to the club meeting, or the committee meeting to make a report. When the afternoon session is over I usually have to see a teacher, or a chairman of something or other and carry home another job."

"The only time I see a boy long enough to talk with him is the short time between the close of school and my reaching home. I never go out during the school week and very seldom on Friday evening. If a boy comes to the house mother has a fit. All I want is a little freedom."

"Don't you see that if I wanted to do objectionable things that watching me wouldn't stop me?"

"Why don't you talk things over with your mother?"

"And have a storm of tears, threats, accusations, hurled at my head? It's impossible to talk to mother."

"Dear mother, it should not be, it must not be. If you are rearing an adolescent daughter you will have to talk to her and arrive at some understanding for the reward of suspicion is an evil thing."

ON THE SIDELINES

Which may or may not be in accord with the views of The Register

By Horace McPhee

SOMETHING TO READ—Speaking of "best books," The University of California has recently gotten up and recommended a list of such that seems to be all right.

Selected for the study of students of English literature in junior colleges of the state they are equally good for anyone. Here is the list of the "10 best":

Thackeray's "Vanity Fair"; Bunyan's "Pilgrim's Progress"; Addison's "Sir Roger de Coverly Papers"; Thomas Hardy's "Return of the Native"; Shelley's "Complete Poetical Works"; Browning's "Complete Poetical and Dramatic Works"; Boswell's "Life of Johnson."

For "100 per cent Americans" there is another list by all-American authors:

Clemens (Mark Twain), "Adventures of Huckleberry Finn"; O. W. Holmes, "The Autocrat of the Breakfast Table"; W. D. Howells, "The Rise of Silas Lapham"; W. Whitman, "Leaves of Grass"; Cooper, "Last of the Mohicans"; Clemens, "The Adventures of Tom Sawyer"; J. G. Whittier, "Complete Poetical Works"; Washington Irving, "Sketch Book"; H. W. Longfellow, "Complete Poetical Works"; Emerson, "Essays and Poems."

It will have to be admitted that in neither of these lists is a book in which the chief appeal lies in the X cross shows where the body of the murdered man was found. Nevertheless the books enumerated are well worth reading, and many of them, of a careful study.

ALWAYS WITH US.—The man (frequently it is a woman) who is afraid to trust his or her money to the banks has been with us from time immemorial. Frequently the stove is chosen as the safest and best repository for the money of the household and when some member of the family who is unacquainted with the fact proceeds to kindle a fire in that stove the result is somewhat calculated to shake one's faith in that form of savings bank.

There are other ways and means chosen by those whose distrust of savings or other banks causes them to refuse to do business with either except as a borrower.

From Chicago comes a news story of a man who, years ago, highly resolved to be his own banker.

Many years ago Charles Prochaska, who disliked banks, built his own—a chest of oak—lined it with lead to make it so heavy no one could carry it away. Into it he put his nickels and dimes. Six years ago his wife died. Recently he advertised for and got a new cook.

"Oh, what a pretty box!" observed the new cook soon after her arrival.

"Yes," he replied, "it's got $600 in it." When he returned from work the box that couldn't be moved was gone. So was the new cook.

The moral of this story lies in the application thereof.
